CITIZENS MAY BE TOLD WHEN AUDIT IS DUE

Treasury Works on Plan to Notify Taxpayers Before
Check Is Made

WOULD AVOID CONFUSION

Cost of Step Would Be Relatively Small for Results Obtained

Washington—Plans are being considered by the treasury department whereby it may be possible to notify taxpayers just when their income tax returns shall have been audited. Many business institutions, for example, have been seriously inconvenienced because they have assumed that their returns were correctly made only to have them suddenly reopened two or three years later when they had felt confident the matter was closed.

Under the present system a taxpayer files his return and that is the last he hears of it unless there is some mistake made. Sometimes a mistake in income tax auditing on the part of a company means an extra assessment, which works hardship because it may be asked for during a year when business is not so good as in the year it should have been paid originally.

EXPEDITE U. S. AUDITS

The whole problem of the treasury is to expedite the auditing of the returns so as to minimize this kind of inconvenience. The cost of sending a communication to every taxpayer is considered by Secretary Mellon to be a relatively small matter if indeed there is no other obstacle to the process. One of the difficulties, of course, will be that the treasury does not always finish auditing the returns and reserves the right to re-open consideration of a certain return if a new line of thought develops with respect to the income tax returns of a particular type of business or industry. This, however, is diminishing as the internal revenue administration grows each year more familiar with the intricacies of modern business.

Generally speaking, the number of returns which seek to evade the law are a small minority. Up to now the treasury has had to make a quick examination of many returns and if on the face of it there appeared to be something wrong the government has asked the taxpayer to write his rights under the statute of limitations so that the time for further consideration would not be limited. The problem now being considered, however, is how to aid the taxpayers who do not have anything wrong with their returns and who would like to know at the earliest possible moment that their returns have been audited.

BARKING DOG AROUSES FAMILY TO GAS DANGER

Milwaukee—(P)—The barking of Buster, a three months old bull pup saved 13 persons from suffering serious effects from coal gas poisoning. The dog's master, Michael Cirra, had planned to sell him, but now has decided that he deserves a permanent home with them. The Cirra family moved into a new home. A coal stove was set up but was not fixed to give sufficient draft.

Early Saturday the house filled with gas. Frank Cirra was awakened by the frantic barking of the dog. Recognizing the smell of gas, he stumbled to the window and smashed it with his arm. He suffered severe cuts. His calls for help brought the police who by artificial respiration methods revived those seriously affected.

SHAW ACCEPTS NOBEL PRIZE FOR LITERATURE

London—(P)—George Bernard Shaw will accept the Nobel prize money which goes with the Nobel award for literature with a view to establishing a fund for the furtherance of literary relations between Sweden and England, says Baron Palmstierna the Swedish minister to Great Britain. Mr. Shaw made known his decision in a letter to the minister in which he said he would fulfill all the Swedish academy's conditions regarding the Nobel prize so as to facilitate the legal use of cash.

SELLS LARGE HOLDINGS IN WISCONSIN COMPANY

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—Jesse P. Witter, treasurer and one of the largest stockholders of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co. of this city, Friday announced the sale of his entire holdings in the company to George W. Mead, president of the company. Mr. Witter is the son of J. D. Witter, senior, who founded the Consolidated Co. in 1902.

Santa Claus Will Arrive Here Wednesday Afternoon

DID DAN CUPID LURE
BADGER WOMAN? IOWA
COURT MUST DECIDE

Boone, Ia. — (P) — The Boone county court will decide, probably next Tuesday, whether Dan Cupid or a desire to win a small fortune through matrimony brought Mrs. Mattie C. Downie to Vaukeshia, to Boone to marry W. J. Lindley. The action will be on guardianship proceedings, started by friends of Lindley, after he had obtained a marriage license and eloped with Mrs. Downie to Nevada, Iowa, following the objections to the marriage here. Ceremony was prevented by the filing of court action. Lindley, who is blind and in ill health, "met" Mrs. Downie through correspondence following his advertisement for a wife. His friends declare he is said to be worth about $5,000. Mrs. Downie has retained a lawyer to fight her case.

CITE NEED FOR MORE ROOM IN HIGH SCHOOL

Can't Control Students if Activities Are Taken Outside of School

Six big problems of Appleton high school are the lack of adequate facilities, the increasing lack of a realization of proper social attitudes, the need for cooperation of outside agencies, over-emphasis on extra-curricular activities, the college and the college students, and the easy going acceptance of parental influence toward students' excuses, according to H. H. Helble, principal, at an educational meeting of the board of education at the superintendent's office Friday evening. Principals of the Friday high schools presented the social problem arising in the adolescent age, and a few business matters were considered by the board.

NEED GYMNASIUM
"There is not space nor room for a real senior high school program in the present building," the principal said. Perhaps the greatest need, he continued, is for a high school gymnasium which would seat from 1,000 to 1,200 persons. The financial saving would be an advantage because approximately $1,500 is spent for rent each season for space for athletics. But the moral problem at the armory is the most outstanding difficulty, it was said. He urged the members of the board to go to a basketball game and look over the situation.

The environment is not suitable for high school students who are often under the impression that it is sanctioned by the school since it is a school game played. Many of the people who habituate the place are not desirable and the commercial sports ordinarily carried on there are not conducive to the best interests of boys and girls, Mr. Helble stated. Lack of an auditorium for high school productions presents both a financial and moral problem as does the lack of a gymnasium, he maintained. The cost of producing the two class plays and the high school operetta each year is about $50, which is paid by the students from the proceeds of the ticket sale. The school cannot control the actions of the students at a public theatre as it could in a school auditorium, and much of the desirable morale inculcated by a student production is lost in the commercialized environment, the speaker continued.

LACK SOCIAL TRAINING
Since the war and since the passing of the school law requiring the attendance of all persons below 18 years of age, many of the students in high school are ignorant of what constitutes attitudes, habits and ideas for their home training has been inadequate socially. The high school is trying to combat this lack through a Turn to Page 15, Col. 4.

Electrician Faces Long Term For Murder Plot

Port Orchard, Wash. — (P)—W. G. Walker, electrical engineer faced a sentence of possibly 20 years in the penitentiary Saturday because the woman in the case changed her mind, nipped Walker's alleged plot to slay her husband by electrocution and became, instead of a confederate in the plan, the means of convicting him of attempted murder. A superior court jury here Friday night returned the verdict against Walker after a few minutes of deliberation. Sentence is yet to be pronounced. Mrs. Herbert J. Kenniston, the state's star witness, testified Walker plotted with her to kill her husband by attaching an electric transformer to a switch in the Kenniston home and connecting it to a metal plate on the floor—a contrivance which testimony showed would have killed anyone who stood on the plate and touched a light switch overhead. Walker promised her she testified that he would shoot Kenniston if the contrivance failed to work, and that it was a success she could sue the Light and Power Co. for $20,000 for her husband's death. But when the time arrived to put the machine into use, Mrs. Kenniston reported the plot to the police, who surrounded the house and arrested Walker.

MARIE'S TRAIN NEARING END OF U. S. TOUR

Queen Is Reassured by Message That King Ferdinand and Is Recovering

Harper's Ferry, W. Va. — (P)—Queen Marie's special train left here shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday morning for New York after she and her party had been whisked through the historic Shenandoah valley in automobiles. The queen was due to reach New York late Saturday on the last lap of her American tour. Her majesty plans to sail on the Berengaria on Nov. 24. Cheered by a reassuring message from her husband, King Ferdinand, Queen Marie set out for a light and slight feeling in her journey to New York. Distress and anxiety which gripped Marie for three days and caused her to abandon her tour at Louisville were greatly alleviated Friday night when she received word that King Ferdinand was better. "I want to thank you," she told Colonel Carroll, her host, "for this very happy trip we have had, even though our hearts are saddened by its unexpected ending."

Prince Nicholas of Rumania, separated from the entourage of his royal mother, embarked Saturday upon an inspection tour of several of the larger manufacturing plants in Detroit. REPORT KING WORSE
Paris—(P)—There is no doubt, says the Petit Parisien, that the condition of King Ferdinand of Rumania, who has been in bed since the outbreak of the war, has become sensibly worse in the last three weeks.

"It is remarked that as the law stands the king would be succeeded by his five-year-old grandson, Michael, a counsel regency composed of Prince Nicholas, the patriarch of the Orthodox church, and the president of the supreme court none of whom has any administrative experience. The return of Carol would be a remedy, but it would require besides a family reconciliation the repeal of the law passed by parliament Jan. 5 (accepting Carol's abdication) and even then it is not known if the king would be willing to resume the duties he twice voluntarily renounced."

GIRL LOSES SUIT TO COLLECT DAMAGES

Oshkosh Jury, Out 35 Minutes, Returns Verdict for Maloney

After being out 35 minutes, the jury hearing the suit of Miss Loyola Kinsinger, formerly of Appleton, for $10,000 damages from Charles Maloney, of Oshkosh, returned a verdict for the defendant. The case has been in progress in county court in Oshkosh for several days. Miss Kinsinger alleged that injuries received in a fall while skating at Appleton here caused her to be crippled for life. She said improper lighting caused her to fall. Maloney is the manager of Cinderella dance hall near Appleton city limits. The jury received the case at 3:55 Friday afternoon and returned a verdict at 4:30. Attorneys for Miss Kinsinger were Mark Cullen and E. C. Smith of Appleton, and Bonck, Klum, Hulton and Dempsey of Oshkosh were attorneys for Maloney. Appleton people who testified in the case Friday, were Dr. V. F. Marshall and Dr. D. J. O'Connor, Mrs. Muriel Horn, Miss Alice Chatter, Walter Scherck and Clifton London.

LEOPOLD TAKEN FROM PRISON TO TESTIFY

Joliet—(P)—Nathan Leopold, who left behind a home of wealth and other advantages when he and Richard Loeb, slayers of Bobby Franklin, went to prison two years ago for life, was taken to the courthouse here Saturday as a witness in the trial of six convicts for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter Klein. It was the only time except when he was transferred from the old to the new prison, that Leopold has been outside the prison wall. And it was the first time in two years that Leopold had been permitted to wear civilian garments. He wore a dark brown suit and a brown overcoat also, prison clothing. Leopold hung his head low and looked at the floor as he was taken into the courthouse.

ITALIANS SLAM FASCISTS BUT DON'T SHOW SELVES

Paris—(P)—How to be heard and not seen was the problem confronting two Italian deputies who had undertaken to address an anti-Fascist meeting here, installed in the afternoon, the deputies delivered their speeches, which were transmitted to the audience in the hall by a loud speaker. Then they quietly left the building by a side door without anybody having recognized them.

KING BENJAMIN IN SHADOW OF DEATH, DOCTOR BELIEVES

Benton Harbor, Mich. — (P) — That Benjamin Burnell, "king" of the House of David colony, will yet cheat the law that wants him to answer three statutory charges is the belief expressed not only by followers, but by law enforcement officers of Berrien-co. Benjamin's followers believe their "king" can do no wrong, and county officers see, besides endless legal expedients to delay trial, the spectre of death standing in the background. Although Burnell claims immortality, the shaking, decrepit figure that was dragged out of Shiloh last Wednesday to answer charges brought by two former women members of the cult appeared anything but immortal. And now comes a physician's report "a complication of diabetes, neuritis and high blood pressure, a heart murmur and a pulse ranging from 125 to 130. The most careful nursing and the best of medical care can not lengthen his span of life, the doctor declared."

SHIPS MISSING IN STORM ARE SAFE IN PORT

Overdue Vessels Reach Harbor After Laborious Voyages on Lakes

Milwaukee—(P)—All of the ships caught in the storm which swept Lakes Michigan and Superior Wednesday and Thursday, were safe Saturday. Anxiety for the six coal carrying lake freighters which failed to arrive here Thursday on schedule were allayed Friday night when they docked in the Milwaukee harbor. The vessels, the Monroe C. Smith, William H. Fitzgerald, David Z. Norton, Louis H. Hill and Robert J. Paisley, escaped the storm by taking shelter around the islands in the northern end of Lake Michigan.

COTTONWOOD WRECKED
The steamer Cottonwood Saturday was a mass of twisted wreckage held fast on the rocks of Lake Superior's shore 52 miles up from Sault Ste. Marie, where it was crashed Monday night when borne by a wind of 65 miles an hour.

The crew of 24 made its way to shore where they sought shelter from the storm in fishing shacks. With little food available, the men Saturday were waiting relief which was dispatched to them from Sault Ste. Marie after D. H. Giddings, first mate, set out from the desolate scene of the wreck for aid. Giddings said the vessel was wrecked when blown off its course and was beaten against rocks fifty feet from shore. The starboard bow was smashed and the hold filled with water. Forced to abandon the vessel, the crew managed to reach shore in safety, Giddings said.

RUSSELL HUBBARD SAFE

Ashland—(P)—The Russell Hubbard, ore carrier overdue since 6 o'clock Thursday, for which coast guardsmen have been looking, pulled into Ashland harbor at 12 o'clock Saturday noon and docked at the Soo ore dock.

WIDENER AT DULUTH
Duluth, Minn.—(P)—The steamer Peter A. D. Widener entered the Duluth Harbor under convoy of two tugs early Saturday. It will proceed to dry dock. The steamer lost its rudder Wednesday and rode out a storm at anchor just outside Duluth harbor since Wednesday afternoon.

FRENCH FRANC SOARS; HIGHEST SINCE JULY

Paris—(P)—The franc soared again Saturday, closing on the Bourse at 25.77 to the dollar, the highest figure since March. It is now worth almost twice its value of mid-July, when it reached its lowest level.

Expect End Of British Coal Strike Next Week

London—(P)—Although the delegate conference of the coal miners Friday decreed that the various district organizations should make no final settlement of the coal strike with the mine owners until another conference is held to consider the reports of the various negotiations, the consensus is this will have little effect. The belief prevails that the seven months strike, which is regarded the most disastrous in the country's annals, is virtually over and that next week miners will be hastening back to work. There is no sign of any forgoing calling off of the strike, but all present indications are that preparations are being made for the mining of coal to start forthwith. It is contended that while the miners have gained nothing and lost much, the mine owners cannot claim more than a pyrrhic victory. Their losses and the losses of their shareholders are enormous, the nation and national industries have suffered incalculable disaster which is represented by the current calculation of money loss amounting to between $1,500,000,000 and $2,500,000,000.

POPE SCORES MEXICAN LAW ON RELIGION

Condemns "Bloody Tyranny" Suffered by Clergy and Followers

Rome—(P)—Pope Pius, in an encyclical published Saturday condemns the "bloody tyranny" suffered by the clergy and faithful in Mexico, exhorts those in other lands to continue prayers in behalf of the Mexicans and expresses faith in the final victory of the church. He enlarges upon two themes, the increasing violence of the persecution, including attacks on young women, and the growth of courageous, though peaceful, resistance.

He examines especially "the arbitrary character of the so-called political constitution of 1917 and the intolerable way in which the conditions of the Catholics have been rendered even more odious by the recent and even more tragic law and by its violent application, accompanied by the grossest abuses of authority, reaching bloody tyranny."

PRaises SPLENDID RESISTANCE
In contrast to the gloomy picture of the horrors of the persecution, the pope describes the splendid spectacle of resistance offered by bishops, priests and laymen, especially the members of the principal Catholic associations which he praises by name.

These include the Knights of Columbus, the Federation for Defense of Religious Liberty, the Association of Mexican Catholic Youth, and the Union of Mexican Catholic women, all of which, he says, have earned the gratitude of the church and their country. The pope then recalls the divine promise of future victory and the immortality of the church, even amid the most terrible storms, and expresses the hope that the persecutors themselves may repent realizing how much their country and they themselves owe to the church and the Catholic religion.

All good civilization and progress existing in Mexico, the encyclical declares, came through the Catholic religion.

JURY IN FOREST-CO ADJOURNS TO NOV. 29

More Than 40 Indictments Returned During Past Two Months' Session

Crandon—(P)—The forest-co, grand jury which has been in session here for the past two months and which has returned more than two score indictments growing out of crime and violation of political and criminal laws in this county has adjourned until Nov. 29, it was announced in court Saturday morning.

Bernard Coy and S. C. Crawford, recently indicted by the jury for the robbery of the W. F. Netzler store here, are still in jail awaiting the arrival of Judge William E. Quinlan of Marinette, who will pass sentence. The two men are expected to plead guilty to the charge.

INSULL ACQUIRES SITE FOR CIVIC OPERA HOME

Chicago—(P)—A site for a $7,500,000 home for the Chicago Civic Opera company has been acquired by Samuel Insull, its chief sponsor. A half block on the west side of the loop, facing the Chicago river, has been taken over by the utilities magnate who, his friends say, has tired of making money and now desires to spend it in behalf of Chicago.

GIRL DIES OF INJURIES AFTER CRASH WITH TRAIN

Madison—(P)—Ellen Steinhauer, 18, a Madison department store employee, died here Friday from injuries she received earlier in the evening when the car she was driving collided with a Milwaukee road train in the village of McFarland. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steinhauer of Cottage Grove.

SEES M'ADOO AS '28 CHOICE OF DEMOCRATS

Wilson Secretary of Agriculture Believes Drys Control Party

New York—(P)—Dry Democrats from the west and south will nominate William Gibbs McAdoo for the presidency in 1928, it is believed by Edwin T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture in the Wilson administration. Governor McAdoo of New York, will be eliminated "as possibility by the adoption of a dry platform, in Mr. Meredith's opinion. The New York World, an ardent Smith supporter, regards McAdoo's pronouncement as to a move to counter the momentum Smith received by his reelection for a fourth term.

The former secretary has been widely mentioned as a possible compromise nominee, but he insists he is not a candidate.

SEES DRY IN CONTROL

"In my judgment," he said in a speech here, "the next Democratic national convention will be controlled by the progressive Democrats from the west and south. The platform will not be wet and undoubtedly will include in its declaration of party policy and program, a prohibition law enforcement plank. This country is dry today. I do not believe that Governor Smith consistently could run on the sort of a platform the 1928 convention is most likely to adopt."

Mr. McAdoo, he said, "would be the rallying point" for the progressives in the 1928 convention, adding:

"He is the only man within our party around whom any considerable group of progressives, a majority of whom also happen to be drys, would gather to make their stand against the wets and what they regard as the reactionary east." The convention will not doubt be held somewhere in the middle-west or west, in Mr. Meredith's opinion.

U. S. COMMISSIONER AT MILWAUKEE QUILTS POST

Milwaukee—(P)—John W. McMillan, United States commissioner, has resigned, Federal Judge F. A. Geiger announced Saturday. The office is on a fee basis and takes only part of the incumbent's time and Mr. McMillan found that it was interfering too much with his law practice. Judge Geiger will appoint his successor. The duties of a United States commissioner in administering the federal laws are similar to some extent to those of the district judge in administering the state laws. Each conducts preliminary examinations of persons accused of violating laws and if the evidence warrants it, binds them over for trial. However, a commissioner has no power to try cases and impose sentences, as a district judge has in minor cases.

TICKET SCALPERS SELL BY THE YARD IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis—(P)—Scalpers, selling tickets for the Minnesota-Michigan game here, disposed of them by the "yard" police detectives learned Friday night. Detectives, posing as prospective purchasers, asked the price of tickets and were informed that they cost "a dollar a yard." Asked to explain, the scalper said "tickets on the ten-yard line, 10; fifty yard line, $50. The detectives purchased four $50 tickets and arrested the scalper. He was held without charge.

FISHING WHEN 2 WERE SLAIN, HE TESTIFIES

Defendant Denies Stories of State Witnesses in Double Murder

70 MILES AWAY, CLAIM

Dickman's Story of "Fishing Pier" Interview False, He Says

Courthouse, Somerville, N. J. — (P)—Henry Stevens, who is a defendant, with his sister and brother in the Hall-Mills murder trial, took the witness stand to testify in his own behalf on opening of court Saturday morning. He was the first of the defendants to be called. Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and Willie Stevens, the two other defendants, will testify later.

Alibis are the chief reliance of the defense in attempting to free Mrs. Frances Hall and her brothers, Henry, and Willie Stevens, from the web of evidence which the prosecution spent two weeks and used 54 witnesses in constructing.

SAYS HE WAS FISHING

The defense hopes to convince the jury that Henry Stevens was fishing near his home 70 miles away when the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, choir singer in the church, were slain on a farm outside New Brunswick four years ago; that Mrs. Hall was playing solitaire alone in her home in New Brunswick, two miles from the scene of the slaying, and that Willie Stevens was asleep in his bedroom.

Stevens denied stories of state witnesses as to his movements. He was not in New Brunswick when Mrs. Mary Demas told of seeing him in the slaying, he said, and was not near the scene of the slaying a year later, as testified to by Mrs. Anna Hong. He said that at the time former State Trooper Henry L. Dickman told of questioning him on a "fishing pier" at Lavallette, he was in Florida and no such "fishing pier" was in existence then or now.

COOK WAS PRESENT

The witness said that he spent the morning downtown and fished in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Stevens was in New York, he said, but the cook was present when he had the evening meal at home about 6 o'clock. During the early evening, he said, he went to a neighbor's house to tell him that the fish were biting and also weighed a six pound blue fish for a friend.

Mr. Stevens said that he was thoroughly familiar with shotguns and knows something of cartridges (for animals). He declared that he had not owned or fired a pistol in 25 years.

IS CROSS-EXAMINED

After Stevens had specifically denied having had anything to do with the deaths of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills he was turned over to Special Prosecutor Simpson for cross-examination. Simpson emphasized the fact that the witness had not come to Somerville when he received the news of his sister's arrest and 40 hours confinement in jail, although he was in Philadelphia. He also questioned Stevens as to what the prosecutor termed his failure to come to see his brother in jail until he, himself, was arrested. The reply to these questions was that he could not have done any material good.

Simpson also asked the witness in detail as to the time required to drive by automobile from Lavallette to New Brunswick. Stevens said it took about 2 1/2 hours and that he had never made it in less than two hours. The prosecutor asked if he had not told a man that he could drive it in an hour and one half by a "back road." This Stevens denied.

"Stand up, Pete," called Simpson. A man in the audience arose. "Didn't you tell this man that you could drive it in one hour and a half?" "I did not."

187 SCHOOLS ARE INSPECTED DURING YEAR, NURSE SAYS

Miss Marie Klein Submits Annual Report to County Board of Supervisors

County Nurse Marie Klein interviewed 235 adults on some phase of health work; inspected 187 schools where 1,072 children were thoroughly examined and more than 600 partially looked over. As a result 450 notices were sent to parents calling their attention to abnormal conditions discovered. Miss Klein declared in reading her annual report to the county board, "The value of physical inspection in schools," Miss Klein said, "cannot be overestimated. It helps stimulate children to want to be physically fit and to do those things which will make them so."

Included among the abnormal conditions discovered during school inspection Miss Klein reports that 393 cases where teeth were involved; tonsils, 240, vision, 48, and speech defects, 11.

Many of the parents responded at once and expressed appreciation for having had their attention drawn to the fact that there might be a defect some reported back that they were not able to have conditions changed and a few declared that they believed it unnecessary to give the child attention, it was stated in the report.

Of the 203 who reported having corrections made 161 were teeth, 22 tonsils removed, 20 vision corrections, and 3 defective speech cases receiving special training. More than 70 children were sent home from school with signs of acute illness.

Special health talks were given to 149 groups of school children.

Miss Klein pointed out that in the vast majority of home calls she was accorded every possible courtesy and cooperation but cited one instance where considerable difficulty was found in convincing a family that tuberculosis was imminent. The mother finally died from lung trouble and a 4 year old child became affected but is now in a sanatorium, the report shows.

One case where a farmer was suffering from scarlet fever but continued to milk and sell milk was noted as an extreme where a law enforcement officer had to be called upon before quarantine could be established.

Eighteen health meetings for the discussion of social hygiene were held with speakers being brought in from the state department and a health exhibit was arranged at the Seymour fair. Assignments were given the Milk Week campaign conducted by the county agent and the extension division of the university. Miss Klein also talked on various phases of health at 13 adult group meetings.

During the year Miss Klein served as "taxi driver" in 46 instances where for various reasons the persons could not supply transportation to attend chest clinics or get to institutions. In closing or get to institutions. The latter project is the result of an agreement between the counties.

APPROPRIATE $20,000 FOR WISCONSIN-AVE

Resolutions providing for specific appropriations to take care of virtually all of the 1927 road maintenance, building and repair, program were introduced at the county board meeting Friday and approved. The resolutions were introduced when the highway committee program was outlined and the action Friday was routine as no material changes were made in the proposed program.

Among the items was an appropriation of $20,000 for use on Wisconsin-ave in Appleton and $5,000 for completion of the county line road between Winnebago and Outagamie-co. The latter project is the result of an agreement between the counties.

THEOLOGIAN TO SPEAK TO LAWRENCE STUDENTS

Dr. Elmer Leslie of the School of Theology at Boston university, Boston, Mass., will speak at the convocation services at Lawrence college Monday morning in the interests of social service. Dr. Leslie is making a tour of colleges through the country, being in Minnesota during the past week. This will be the second year that the speaker has been at Lawrence.

The ministry social work, and decency will be some of the topics discussed by the speaker. Conference will be held with students interested in Dr. Leslie's work during the day after the main address.

SHORT TALKS BY THOUGHTFUL MOTHERS

A Pennsylvania mother speaks first: "I know the worth of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. We used it for years, and it never failed us. For croupy children, feverish colds, disturbing night coughs, it gives us a feeling of security to have Foley's Honey and Tar Compound in the house." No opiates, no chloroform, made under rigid sanitary control, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound carries a strong appeal to thoughtful mothers everywhere. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

KELLY WASN'T ILL, SO BOARD WITHDREW ORDER FOR FLOWERS

If Thomas Kelly was ill he might have received some flowers as a mark of esteem from the county board—in fact Mr. Kelly came very near to receiving them, sick or well. The report was circulated Friday morning that this asylum trustee was confined to his home by illness. P. H. Ryan introduced a motion that flowers be sent by the board. The motion carried unanimously. A telephone call revealed that Mr. Kelly is not ill. The motion was later withdrawn.

SEEK DONATIONS TO ERECT MONUMENT

Red Arrow Veterans Urged to Contribute to Haan Memorial

Madison—(U)—Since 1919 some 4,000 Thirdward division veterans, largely from Michigan and Wisconsin, have changed their addresses. It was revealed here when 4,000 out of 17,000 letters addressed to members of the Red Arrow association were returned because the addresses were incorrect.

The matters were sent out in a campaign to raise among the former members of the division to erect a monument at the grave of Maj. Gen. William G. Haan at Arlington. Replies have been received from through the United States and Canada and although Michigan and Wisconsin furnished a large majority of the men of the division, contributions from outside have so far exceeded those from the two home states. The committee has requested veterans, in sending in donations to give their present addresses.

MEETING GIVEN $500 INCREASE IN SALARY

A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, won a raise of $500 a year in salary before the county board Friday morning.

Only county members are allowed to vote on this question and an amendment to a resolution setting the pay at $3,500, the old figure, carried 19 to 10. This resolution was brought in by a special committee appointed Tuesday to investigate Mr. Meating's application for an increase in salary. Anton Jansen, Little Chute, made the motion for an amendment bringing the stipend up to $3,000.

LESS TRAFFIC ON FOX RIVER HERE

Sharp Decrease in Number of Lockages and in Number of Tons

The traffic report for the Fox river canal during the month of October shows a large increase in traffic at Kaukauna and Little Chute and a big loss at DePere, Appleton, Kimberly and Menasha. The reason for this is that several boats have been working between Kaukauna and Little Chute during the past month. A reason for the big decrease here is that the Fox River Navigation company has not used the river for the past three weeks, only the Cook and Brown company of Oshkosh having boats in use. The latter company will continue to use the river until the close of navigation.

At DePere the number of lockages in October dropped to 261 from 293 in September. The tonnage passing through the locks at this point decreased from 32,500 to 33,052. At Kaukauna there was increase of 62 lockages. In September there were 220 and in October, 282. The tonnage increased from 32,712 to 33,290. At Little Chute the lockages increased from 193 in September to 245 in October. The tonnage increased from 32,003 to 35,615.

At the Cedars lock at Kimberly, the lockages decreased from 197 in September to 147 in October. The tonnage decreased from 31,991 to 23,550. At Appleton the lockages dropped from 123 to 97 and the tonnage from 19,436 to 13,167. At Menasha the decrease was from 72 to 49 lockages and from 6,239 to 4,589 tons.

DEFER ELECTION OF Y. M. C. A. DELEGATES

A discussion of the state convention of the Y. M. C. A. which will be held from Nov. 25 to 28 in Racine was held at a meeting of the board of directors of the local association Thursday afternoon. It was decided to elect local delegates to the session after it has been determined who would be able to attend from here. Appleton is entitled to 11 official voting delegates but it is hoped to have an additional group at the meetings. President F. J. Harwood was unanimously re-elected Appleton representative on the state board. The election must be confirmed by the convention next week. Reports of employed officers and the cafeteria management for October occupied the remainder of the meeting.

BUILDING CONTRACTS IN MONTH ARE NINE MILLION

Wisconsin had $9,258,300 in contracts for new building and engineering work last month, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. There were decreases of 16 per cent from September 1926 and 1 per cent from October of last year.

The record of building activity in Wisconsin during October included the following items of importance: $3,132,500, or 34 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $1,603,500, or 17 per cent, for commercial buildings; $1,440,000, or 16 per cent, for social and recreational projects; $1,237,000, or 14 per cent, for industrial buildings; and $1,250,500, or 14 per cent, for educational buildings.

The total volume of construction contracts let in Wisconsin during the first ten months of this year amounted to $85,304,100, which was an increase of 12 per cent over the amount ($85,429,500) for the corresponding period of 1925.

FRANK IS SPEAKER AT JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

What's Wrong with the Government was the subject of an address by W. W. Frank at a general assembly meeting at Wilson Junior high school Thursday afternoon. The superficial attacks of citizens on the government when it causes personal disappointment or discomfort was deplored by the speaker.

There is nothing wrong with our government, Mr. Frank believed, except the short sightedness of those people who will let others do their thinking for them. He urged the students to take an active interest in the work of the government and to think independently.

WILL DEMONSTRATE HOW TO USE PHONE

A demonstration by members of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. of the proper methods of using the telephone will be the program for the Y's Men's club at its regular meeting at 8:30 Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Routine business and plans for an initiation will occupy the remainder of the evening.

Talks at Neenah College Training was the subject of a talk by Dan A. Hardt, president's assistant at Lawrence college, to students of Neenah high school on Tuesday and of Menasha high school on Friday. Mr. Hardt also held conferences with the students.

EISCH KEPT BAR IN CELLAR, COPS FIND

Technicality of Padlock Kept Government from Entering Case

A technicality of the padlock proceedings under which William Eisch, Appleton saloon proprietor, had been forbidden to operate his place of business for one year kept the government from entering the recent case where Mr. Eisch was fined $200 and placed on probation for one year, it was pointed out by Municipal Judge Theodore Berg on Thursday.

In a letter from Roy Morse, United States district attorney, Judge Berg was informed that the padlock action specified the actual former saloon premises and that the entire building was not named in the injunction.

When police raided the Eisch establishment three weeks ago the bar was found in the cellar, it was stated.

SENATORS ARE ALL NICE TO FRAZIER; SEND PARTY INVITE

North Dakota Senator, Out-cast for Two Years, Wields "Big Stick"

Washington — "Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it to thee, unto the half of my kingdom," said Herod to Salome when she danced before him and his guests.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, is the Salome of the next congress.

A political outcast for two years Frazier's power has become such that both Republican and Democratic parties are now casting anxious glances in his direction. Each side wants him to dance with it.

Frazier was read out of the Republican party after the La Follette presidential campaign and now, when he is the only one of those so treated still in the senate, his vote becomes of paramount importance to the G. O. P. Senator Borah recently paved the way for Frazier's reinstatement in an open letter, but the North Dakotan can afford to be very fussy about his future playmates.

The question is, what will Frazier demand? The Republicans can hardly organize the next congress without him unless they have some Democratic help.

NO ENTICEMENT

Someone has suggested giving him the chairmanship of the Indian affairs committee, but presumably that will not be a savory bait.

Nor is he likely in these enlightened days to demand on a silver charger—the head of Senator Jim Watson, who will be the only senator remaining of the three members of the committee on committees who voted to oust Frazier, the elder La Follette, Ladd and Brookhart.

Frazier, himself, is sitting tight. It's not his move. Obviously, he will be no turn-coat and progressive principles will continue to dominate his course, but he refuses to discuss his plans.

His principal interest, of course, is farm relief. It seems very likely that he will demand support for some one of the constructive relief measures which will be up before the senate in the near future, as a price for whatever semblance of party regularity he agrees upon.

BETTER THAN NOTHING

"I look for something important in farm relief in December, 1927," he told NEA Service. "I think sentiment is increasing among the farmers themselves and all classes of business men to that end. The manufacturers at last are realizing that they must have a healthy market among the farmers."

"I think some bill like the Norris-Sinclair bill would be better than the McNary-Haugen bill, but the McNary-Haugen measure would be better than nothing."

Frazier might even push a bill of his own in which he still has considerable faith but that he said, would depend on conditions. He doesn't expect the forthcoming session to do much for the farmer.

His latest refusal to chime in with the administration is to be seen in his strong opposition to President Coolidge's tax rebate plan.

"It's no good to the small taxpayer," he insisted. "The millionaires," will be the only beneficiaries. The average citizen will receive a dollar or two while the millionaires will get hundreds of thousands. There's no reason why the big fellows who profited in the war shouldn't help pay some of the war's costs."

Some of Frazier's radical friends doubtless are recalling how Herod squirmed when Salome fixed her price—and how Herod couldn't help himself. At any rate they don't expect him to be satisfied with a mere evangelist's scalp.

Just unpacked — new bright 1927 models for fur coat hats. See them at $5, $6.50 and $7.50.

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE ADOPTED

A report of the finance committee in which it was set forth that two recent meetings held in widely separated sections of the county to get direct ideas from taxpayers on how to reduce taxes were a failure as far as producing any results was adopted without comment by the county board Friday.

The official report closes an epoch which started last spring when the board ordered that the finance committee arrange a series of county meetings. One was held at Seymour and one at Stephenville and it was decided that a paucity of ideas and a maximum amount of satisfaction with county conditions would make further meetings useless.

It was felt by the committee that the sections chosen for the gatherings were representative of the entire county.

COUNTY Y. W. C. A. LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN TO SECURE $1,000

Half of the Money Is to Be Used to Maintain Hamar House Here

A financial drive for $1,000 was launched by the Y. W. C. A. at Lawrence college this week to obtain funds for the support of the work of the organization nationally and at the school. More than half of the sum raised, it was said, will be used for the upkeep of Hamar Memorial house on E. College-ave. The house was equipped last year to be used as a social center for students.

Other uses for the money will be: $100 for Isabella Thoburn college at Lucknow, India, which is supported by the Y. W. C. A.; $200 for national Y. W. C. A. work; and a scholarship given each year to a girl who is a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and who is working her way through school.

Miss Mary Morton of Mainette, is chairman of the drive, Miss Alice Peterson of Vevauwega, captain of Russell Sage dormitory, and Miss Mildred Scott of Cambria, captain of Ormsby hall. Personal solicitations will be made by the committee of girls in the college, both dormitory and town residents.

BE THANKFUL AND PRAY, BLAINE'S PLEA TO STATE

Governor Designates Thursday as Thanksgiving Day for State

Madison — (AP) — Governor John J. Blaine today announced the official Thanksgiving proclamation for the people of Wisconsin, designating the day as one of "thanksgiving and prayer."

The proclamation follows: "At the close of the autumn season three hundred years ago, a little group of Pilgrims celebrated with Thanksgiving their first harvest in the new land."

"Their prosperity, even their lives, depended on this harvest. A failure of crops might mean starvation, or a plague the blotting out of their entire company. All this they knew, and upon their escape from pestilence and want, they wished to rejoice and give thanks."

"Today, although our lives may not be imperiled by the failure of an immediate harvest, the cultivation of the spirit of gratitude is as essential as it was upon the occasion of that first Thanksgiving celebration, for without this spirit material blessings cannot be made to serve the highest good."

"Then, surely, if hitherto at each recurring harvest gathering the people of this nation and this state have felt themselves blessed, there is ample cause to rejoice at the present Thanksgiving season. We are at peace with all nations, our industries have been remarkably prosperous, our fertile lands have again yielded generous crops, these are but a few of the manifold favors for which we should be grateful."

"For these reasons, and in conformity with the proclamation of the President, I, John J. Blaine, Governor of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby designate Thursday, November 25, 1926, as a day of thanksgiving and contemplation, and I do recommend that the people throughout the state observe the day, in spirit and in fact, giving thanks to Almighty God, in their houses and in their places of worship, for the blessings they have received, to the end that the spirit of gratitude and generosity may be promoted in the hearts of the people."

SIX STUDENTS TAKEN INTO PHI BETA KAPPA

Donald Davis of Appleton was among the six seniors at Lawrence college initiated into Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity at Hamar Memorial house on E. BRAMBACH BABY GRAND

To the People of Appleton

When you purchase a piano it is the event of a lifetime. You should use the thought in choosing a piano that I do. Only from established houses of unquestionable financial standing do the pianos in my warehouses come; from firms that are jealous of their reputations for commercial standing.

Such a manufacturer is the Brambach Piano Company. For 104 years this reputable firm has manufactured the finest Baby Grand it is possible to create at the price asked for them. They stand behind their pianos to the limit—their unconditional guarantee of satisfaction insures a lifetime of piano service.

If the sounding board splits during the life of the piano, it will be repaired or replaced (owner's choice), free of charge. All material and workmanship are unconditionally guaranteed; we and the Brambach Company want you to be a "satisfied customer." You enjoy carefree musical satisfaction when you buy a Brambach Baby Grand from us.

Do come in and inspect the new Fall models soon.

To those who really know music value it hardly seems possible a Brambach Baby Grand can be sold for such a modest price as $650.

Only through modern methods of scientific manufacture is this possible. For if Brambach were not the largest small grand manufacturer in the world, an instrument of equal tone and beauty would have to retail at from $800—$900. When you purchase a Brambach you obtain musical perfection at a saving.

MAUDINE WON CONTEST -- MAIDS DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE

Never did newspaper cartoonists have another target like the one the late "Uncle Joe" Cannon supplied them when he was in his prime. Cannon at the height of his power was the most cartooned man in the country. Here are a few of the sketches of him that various newspaper cartoonists did in the days when he was speaker of the house of representatives and ruled with "a gravel of iron."

Students of Ohio State University at Columbus might with all propriety have chosen Miss Katherine Porter, left, as their beauty queen. Few, of any would have criticized had they picked Miss Margery Rutledge, right. Equally unanimous might have been a vote in favor of Miss Willen Ludwig, below. But did any of these three exemplars of pulchritude win? No—not a bit of it. The winner, reader, was lovely Maudine Ormsby, whose map appears in the center. Maudine is the prize cow of the university's agricultural department.

Jewelry which disappeared from the New York home of Mrs. Myron C. Taylor was valued by her at $300,000. A pearl necklace worth $175,000 was the most valuable piece. This picture of Mrs. Taylor was taken on a recent "round-the-world" cruise.

Queen mean nothing at all in the life of this wee baby in Kirby, Wyo. The infant's mother carried it down to meet Queen Marie's train, and Queen Marie leaned far over the railing of her car to shake its hand. But the baby never gave Marie a tumble. "Me for Ma!" its expression seemed to say.

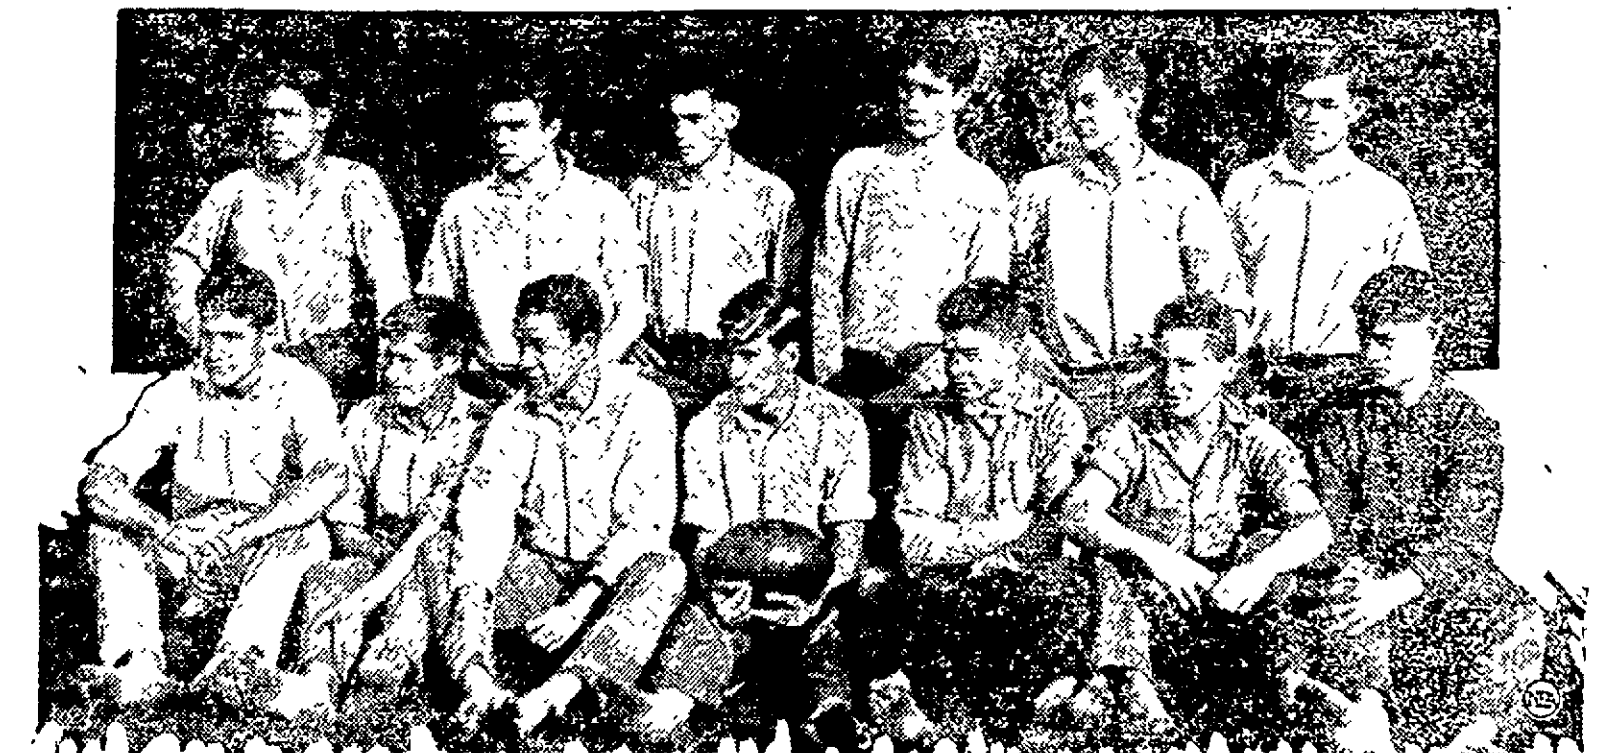

The aggregate age of this woman and her six brothers is 532 years! They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Job Tucker, of Bradford-on-Avon, England, and practically all of their long lives have been lived right there. Lynchburg, Va.—The Presbyterian Orphanage here has the world's only barefootball team. Just how effective they are against opponents who play merely football, and make the ridiculous mistake of wearing shoes on the gridiron, is shown by their season's score—118 points so far to 0 for the six other teams they have played. The barefootball team never ran rough shod over the opposition, but their backs certainly can show clean heels to pursuers. No one ever been able to get even a toe hold to down them. For the whole eleven players, there is only one shoe. That is donned by the quarterback for kicks. When the play is finished, off comes the shoe. The cleated boot adds weight to drive the ball down field, the team admits, but they kick at shoes for all other plays.

THE PRESIDENT IS WEAKENING
There seems to be real doubt as to whether the United States shall become affiliated with the world court. The president's Kansas City address is taken by some to mean that it will not, and it seems to have been received pessimistically in Europe, where there is a feeling that the president's ultimatum on the subject of reservations will not be accepted by all of the court signatories.
We said at the time we believed the president was right in his Kansas City declaration, and by this we meant politically. The president may recommend our laws, but he does not make them; similarly he may make our treaties, but the senate must ratify them. His is not the final word in our foreign relations. The senate has attached certain reservations to American adherence to the court, and we think if we were in the president's position we would let them stand. If Europe was willing to accept them, well and good. If not, we would have to stay out of the court. We would not if we were of his feelings on the subject, want to go through the turmoil and rancor of another long controversy in the senate.
Nevertheless, we fear Mr. Coolidge has weakened in his attachment to the court. Possibly he was never as strong for it as was his predecessor, Mr. Harding, who upheld the court in a number of forceful addresses and defended it against all comers. Mr. Coolidge's recommendations were confined to passing approval of the court. We know of no address by him devoted exclusively to it. He did go so far as to say in his third address to congress in December, 1925, that the court is "independent of the League" and is capable of "contributing greatly to the advancement of our ideals."
It took the president two and a half years to get the senate to accept the court, and then only with five reservations. He might have secured this sooner had he pressed his case more vigorously and with greater spirit. We think Mr. Harding would have gone further than Coolidge has gone to get us into the court. This may be because he had Mr. Hughes as secretary of state to back him up. We know Mr. Wilson would have gone further. It is possible that Mr. Coolidge realized from the beginning that the court proposal was bound to kick up a bad rumpus in the Republican party, and he wished to minimize it as much as possible by permitting the senate to attach to it what reservations it pleased. It may be, too, that he has construed the rather unfavorable elections this month, together with a loss of several pro-court senators, including the leader, Mr. Lenroot, as making it inauspicious to press the issue.
If Mr. Coolidge's convictions on the question were deep this would be the weak and discreditable course, for he now has nothing to offer in behalf of the court. Apparently he does not view with regret the possibility of our non-participation. One might even gather from his Kansas City address that he would be glad to get rid of the whole matter and have it shelved. But if we are correct in assuming that he has no strong convictions on the court, he is following the wise and consistent political course. Under such circumstances the senate will have to share with him the responsibility for the outcome, and he can afford to have the incident terminated in this manner. One of these days, however, we shall have at Washington an administration with courageous and progressive views on foreign relations, and it will hold us to a discharge not only of our international obligations, but of a policy that has been in force for twenty years by the Republican party and nearly as long by the Democratic party.

GERMAN AIR LINES
The thoroughness with which Germany is developing aerial transportation is truly marvelous and deserving of sincere commendation. No stone is left unturned to give the air system the same dependability and stability as that evidenced by land and water transportation. Late dispatches from Germany state that the winter rates for passenger airplane travel have been lowered until they are slightly lower than first class railroad fare. This winter some 28 lines will maintain constant service the length and breadth of the German republic.
These lines will cover 7,000 miles of routes. The planes to be used are of the most modern type, even being heated by hot water, the engine exhaust being connected in such a way as to supply this convenience. Germany now has every important city on some air route. One may travel all over it and even all over Europe entirely by airplane in a small fraction of the time formerly required for train conveyance.
America might well take a page from Germany's experience in the development of commercial aviation. It is not a fad, it is a convenience and soon it will be a necessity. In America, where the distances are great, there is even more need of a quick, sure and efficient means of passenger and freight transportation.

FEDERAL SCHOOL ACTIVITIES
So involved have our state and federal inter-relations become that it becomes very hard to distinguish where one begins and where the other leaves off. Especially in the field of education is this true and it becomes increasingly important that we find some dividing line and see that the federal government does not overstep the mark. It is inconceivable that we should hand over to the federal government mandatory control of education. After all, it is an academic and not a political problem and one that can only be solved by the individual communities and states according to their needs and their desires. The function of the federal government in education can only be advisory and cooperative and certainly not directive.
It is undoubtedly true that there is a startling number of very ignorant in these supposedly enlightened United States. The percentage of illiteracy is in many cases sinful and constitutes a disgrace upon our national development. Our only excuse can be that we have grown so far and so fast in so many directions that we have overstepped ourselves.
In general we require three things of the federal government in the field of education. These are: unification of the government's enterprise in education, adequate investigation of large national problems and influential leadership. The government should only exercise mandatory authority in those fields of national interest and activity that might be termed defensive. In other fields it cannot be disputed that its authority should be extended to include only informative, advisory and coordinating powers. Working along these lines the federal government can do much in educational progress.

WHAT ALL LOVERS SHOULD KNOW
When John saw Mistress Mary's face
And marked her touch of gentle grace,
Something within his breast began
To burn as only spirit can.
"Of all the girls there are," said he,
"Here is the only one for me."
Here is the perfect soul divine,
Nor can I rest till she is mine.
Likewise when Mary looked upon
The man that I have labeled John
Her fluttering heart at once began
To tell her: "Here's a perfect man!"
Though reason whispered: "Love is blind,"
He, too, has faults which you will find."
Miss Mary said: "No fault I see,
He is the only man for me."
Thus these two perfect souls were wed.
Now what think you must be ahead?
Will love remain or love depart?
What trifle will a difference start?
For John and Mary both possess
The faults of humans more or less.
Of this there's not the slightest doubt,
And soon the two will find it out.
It all depends on Mary's wit,
And John's good nature, I submit.
Love's glamor soon must disappear
And faults grow plainer year by year.
I give this truth for what it's worth
There are no angels on the earth.
Love marries us, and when we're tied
Says: "Now let reason be your guide."

FOR BIGGER AND BETTER WOMEN
A farmer aged 40, 65½ inches tall, weighs 157 pounds. Is it too much and is reduction advisable, this farmer asks. There is no running water or electricity on the farm. There are four in the family. The farmer does all the work without any help—baking, sewing, washing, canning, house cleaning, everything, while her husband goes blithely forth at dawn—I believe that is the way farmers' husbands get off to play—and spends the long happy day in the field or on the fence or at the fair. I tell you, ladies and soldiers, one appreciates the work done by farmers when one has to cook one's own coffee and toast one's own toast one day this morning.
A racehorse has slender lines, no reserve of fat fuel and the minimum weight of bone and brawn, and is good for nothing but speed. Draft horses are built on massive lines, generally carry a moderate reserve of fat and are good for heavy hauling. But most of the horses that are of any use in the world as workers and also serve as good riding or driving horses, are of conservative or medium architecture and carry a moderate amount of fat when in fair condition. These ordinary horses are also pleasing to the ordinary eye. A fast filly, lank, like and lean like a greyhound, without an ounce of soft fat on her ribs, polls on the eyes. No great artist chooses that kind of horse for a picture.
In the days of trailing skirts and bustles refined ladies were trained to be frail, delicate and sickly; they had to faint on short notice and the arm of the nearest likely looking gentleman; instead of a little fresh air and exercise for what ailed 'em their female guardians fed 'em medicine for weak women, and it usually contained enough alcohol to make 'em forget for a brief spell how frail they were. These sickly women constituted the type from which the present popular figure of feminine perfection was drawn. In the old days a woman of 30 was about perfect if she was 63 inches tall and weighed 128 pounds. That was the best they could do with the poor material available. Today a perfect woman at 30 is 65 inches tall and weighs 145 pounds or a little more if she is very athletic. Our farmer friend is perhaps 25 pounds overweight. The correct or ideal weight for a woman of her age and height is 160 pounds, no matter what any antique weight tables say. I don't know, but perhaps it might be well for her to reduce 10 or 15 pounds in the course of six or eight weeks.
The woman who doesn't play any game or go in for some kind of regular physical training—and real housework isn't so bad as I formerly thought—is a back number now. The education and training of girls is very different from the Pinkhamque fashion of the last century. Young women who are fortunate enough to get a good education, nowadays are physically trained and such training does away with the frailties and weaknesses that formerly handicapped the sex.
So, with strabismus but with one good eye for beauty and another just as good for health, I hail and acclaim the bigger, better women, bigger and better in all four dimensions, women who have already broken many records and improved the quality of the race.
"I am a queen," she replied, "and wherever I go shall go as a queen."

Now that she is rounding out her stay in this country Americans are coming to know that she is indeed a queen—every inch a queen. Washington, D. C. When Marie of Rumania had concluded the official part of her visit to the United States and was about to leave Washington on her transcontinental tour she was asked whether during the remainder of her visit in this country she would continue to be a queen. The idea of the question was that since royalty sometimes avails itself of the absurd fiction of an incognito, perhaps she would complete her journey as Mrs. Somebody from Bucharest.
"I am a queen," she replied, "and wherever I go shall go as a queen."
There was no arrogance in the manner in which it was made, and no boastfulness such as led Shakespeare's mad monarch to proclaim himself every inch a king. It was a simple statement of her status in the world, made in an altogether matter of fact way, serenely and with dignity.

Tentacle Nemesis of Fishermen

Northwest of the tip end of Cape Cod lies the famous "Spider ground." This is a well-known and productive fishing ground, but it is avoided by the fishermen because here their gear comes to the surface with great quantities of "sea-spiders" fastened to it. The hooks get caught in them so that the fishes cannot take the bait.
What is a sea-spider? This name in different places is given to several different kinds of creatures. On our coasts it is applied to a kind of starfish with branched and many times divided arms which is also sometimes called the basket-star.
Basket-stars of one kind or another are found in every sea, but they are commonest in the north Atlantic and the Arctic, and in the north Pacific, where in some places areas of the bottom are thickly strewn with them.
They live mostly down in the quiet water beneath the movement of the waves, and extend downward to depths of more than 6000 feet.
The one shown in the picture is from the West Indies and is often found clinging to plant-like creatures in rather shallow water. Those found on our coasts, both east and west, have much more branched and almost tree-like arms.

New York. — They come seeking Bohemia and find a cut-glass sandwich in a night club.
They come for in search of the life that is free, but they are led to Greenwich Village, the well advertised, 100 per cent product which is no more Bohemian than the Metropolitan Museum.
Big cloak and suit men trek the long miles to see night life, and all they see is the hand-painted, well-rouged variety that is cooked up professionally for the many who come bearing gold.
Where, then, is this mystic Bohemia of New York? How shall one unravel in the ways of this man's (and woman's) town beneath it?
The answer is: Go not into the highways in search of it, but stroll along the hedges where it lives. Go to the East Side or the West Side, or all around the town and keep your eyes open.
Here's a delicatessen, and the sound of a piano is coming from somewhere backstage.
In a back room, surrounded perhaps by fine Italian wine, perhaps cognac, perhaps more, anything, sit the literati and the intelligentsia of the hour.
The taxicab drivers don't know the address, but there is a little grocery store in the Rumanian colony I chanced across recently in the search for local color connected with Her Majesty.
The lights of the stage and many of the screen, authors, play producers, humorists, Broadway's pets, and clowns, here glow nightly.
There is a piano, a very fair assemblage of yellowed ivories and mellow strings. The performers are the folk themselves. Thus the price is not tacked onto the sandwiches that one here can really eat and enjoy.
Into this sanctum of Bohemia come also the people who live upstairs over the barber shop, the folk from just around the corner, the neighborhood, to sit before the board with the visitors from uptown.
As it grows late the frolic heights. There are impromptu dances and songs and speeches.
There is a real air of happiness in life that you'll find in no night club in New York.
There is a friendship and sincerity about it that eludes Greenwich Village.
It is a little segment of the Bohemia that lives along the hedges a slice of life the highways know not of.

Perhaps he said to her, "That's a pretty crown, but we don't believe in crowns in this country — they aren't economical."
Perhaps she said, "A crown becomes a queen."
The Question Box
Q. How much is spent by the Government to enforce the Prohibition Enforcement Law? A. D. M.
A. According to a statement of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue $9,573,791.64 was expended for the enforcement of this law during the fiscal year 1926.
Q. Has the bus and passenger car traffic hurt the railroads? R. H.
A. The report of the railroad of the United States for the current fiscal year show an unusual degree of prosperity, apparently not effected by the increased number of bus lines, passenger automobiles, etc. The prosperity of the nation at large and the increasing desire of people to travel and see all parts of the country have than offset the addition of transportation facilities.

BOARD FROWNS ON $3,000 FUND TO KEEP ROADS OPEN

Resolution Is Sent Back to Highway Committee After Discussion

A highway committee resolution for an appropriation of $3,000 to be devoted to snow removal on state trunk highway 15, between Kaukauna and the Brown-co line, and other points not specified, fared poorly at the hands of the county board when brought up for discussion Friday.

After considerable debate the matter was referred back to the committee.

In explanation the resolution pointed out that Brown-co is willing to cooperate in snow removal and that the Northern Transportation Co. has tentatively ordered 5,000 lineal feet of collapsible snow fence which would be donated for county use if the county will erect it.

Several board members appeared to feel that the document was too loosely worded and did not provide definitely for snow removal between the county and the sanatorium as has always been accomplished in the past.

Others assumed the attitude that the resolution would be "pulling the chestnuts out of the fire" for the transportation company, their assumption being that in some of the trucking concern keep the roads open if it wants to and that it would be opposed to going on record as contracting to use county funds at the behest of a private corporation.

This is a surplus of $1,300 in the snow removal fund at present and the appropriation, if adopted, will give the county approximately $5,000 for winter use.

The temper of the board so far in the session has been mildly opposed to snow removal projects and legislation.

10 "STUDENTS" ATTEND COPY WRITING CLASS

Only 10 men attended the fourth meeting of the class in copy writing sponsored by the Appleton Advertising club at the Boy Scout rooms in Insurance-bldg. Wednesday evening.

The regular meeting night is Thursday, but the class met on Wednesday to allow those taking the course to attend the farm-city dinner on Thursday evening.

Mail Order copy was the subject of the lesson this week and the class was conducted by W. W. Fiant.

There will be no meeting next week because of Thanksgiving.

Hot Band 12 Corners Sun.

NEW YORK MAN SPEAKS AT NEXT MEETING OF FORUM

Arrangements for a joint meeting of the luncheon clubs, and the chamber of commerce and wives of members on Tuesday evening, Dec. 14, at Hotel Northern were made at the semi-monthly meeting of Appleton Advertising club at Hotel Northern Thursday noon. M. S. Tobias of New York City will address the meeting.

Mr. Tobias has given addresses before the Rotary club of New York City, Boston, Philadelphia and many other large cities in the east.

Russel H. Spoor of the Spoor Advertising agency addressed the club on What Makes Men Buy.

STAGE AND SCREEN

CALLoused CAMERAMAN CAN'T HELP EXPLoding ADENNY'S ANTICS IN "TAKE IT FROM ME"

If it makes Arthur Todd laugh, it will make anybody else howl. That's an axiom at Universal City Arthur Todd is a genial enough cameraman, but he has been photographing comedies of one kind or another for years.

He has seen comedians near and far perform all sorts of supposedly humorous antics. He has seen every bit of pantomime, every funny situation, every "gag" ever performed before the motion camera.

So, if the scene can provoke Todd into a chuckle as he cranks the camera on it, the director is a happy man. "Take It From Me," the latest Universal-Reginald Denny production, was photographed by Todd, and William Seiter, the director, proudly asserts that the picture wrung several smiles even from this hardened cynic, so he is thoroughly happy.

next Monday boasts an unusually fine cast in his newest starring vehicle.

Dorothy Dunbar, his leading lady, is a newcomer to the screen, but is hailed as a "find." She enacts the role of Lady Cleone in the film version of Jeffery Farnol's romance of the Regency period. J. Edwards Davis plays the role of John Bartley, ex-champion pugilist of England and father of Barnabas (the Barthelmess role).

Gardner James, who created such a distinct sensation in "Hell Bent for Heaven," has what is considered one of the most important supporting roles in "The Amateur Gentleman," that of Ronald diarymanne, the desolate brother of Lady Cleone. Sidney de Gray is the lovable Captain Chumley, while Nigel Barrie scowls with gusto in the role of the villain.

John Miljan, heretofore a screen villain himself, turns actor and plays the very sympathetic role of Viscount Devenham, who stands by Barnabas throughout his trials in London society. Brandon Hurst, famed as the Caliph in "The Thief of Bagdad," acts as the poacher valet to Barnabas, a role replete with humor.

Herbert Gramwood, whose characterization of Savonarola, the martyr saint of Florence in "Romeo," which was also produced by Inspiration, created world-wide acclaim for the role of Jasper Gaunt.

Edna Bennett acts the part of the Duchess of Cambridge, who champions the suit of Barnabas for the hand of her niece, Lady Cleone. Gino Corrado plays the Prince Regent, while John S. Peters enacts Captain Shingler.

"The Amateur Gentleman" was directed by Sidney Olcott and photographed by David W. Gobbett. It is released through First National.

CHANCE PLAYS A BIG PART IN "ROAD TO GLORY"

Chance—the great unseen, yet all powerful element in human lives furnishes the motive for "The Road to Glory," Fox Films' dramatic version of Howard Hawks' original story, which comes to the New Epix Monday for three days. May Mayvey and Leslie Fenton have the featured roles with Ford Sterling and Rockliffe Fellowes in important characterizations.

It is chance that causes Judith Allen to take one road when another beckoned, resulting in an accident which helps to change her from a happy, spirited girl to a blind, bitter, agnostic.

And it is chance that restores her the sweetheart whom she had cast aside and brings back a faith and happiness discarded.

"The Road to Glory" was directed by Mr. Hawks, the author, and he has made a natural, moving and powerful picture. It rises from light, scintillating entertainment to a dramatic crescendo that will grip you and offers opportunities for the finest scenes Miss Mayvey has yet enacted before a camera.

The cast has been selected with admirable fitness and their performances blend into a perfect dramatic entity. Leslie Fenton is seen as the youthful sweetheart of Judith Allen. Ford Sterling is her "boy friend," as she calls her father; Rockliffe Fellowes is the villain, Milla Davenport the girl's aunt Selma and John MacSweeney the butler.

Ham May Be Dressed Up Many Ways

Making one dish do the work of two at first sounds rather impossible, yet the clever cook sometimes can make one dish do the work of several. On this score ham is a food that speaks for itself. Boiled or baked, it is ready to serve for the first meal. What remains can be used in such a variety of combinations, that it may prove bewildering to make a choice. By wise selection of dishes, however, it is possible to avoid all monotony which might arise from using the same kind of food several times in succession.

Before preparing a ham there are a few important points to keep in mind. Purchasing a whole ham is usually economical, but for the small family a butt, shank end, or a half ham may be a wiser selection. For baking purposes, buy the butt end and for boiling the shank end. In baking, the ham will develop a better flavor and shrink less if the temperature of the oven is kept below 300 degrees Fahrenheit. In cooking ham, the water should be kept several degrees below the boiling point to get the best results.

BASTE WITH FRUIT JUICE
When serving the ham the first time, carve slices from the center. If desired, the ham can be reheated at least once for another meal. It will take three-quarters to one and one-half hours to reheat it properly, depending upon the size of the ham piece. Keep the temperature of the oven around 250 degrees Fahrenheit for reheating, and baste the ham with thin fruit juice. Peach, apricot, pineapple and apple or a mixture of any of these is particularly good. For the next meal, whether lunch, supper or picnic, the meat which slices well can be served cold.

What remains of the ham invites one to try out some happy combinations to the delight of a hungry family. Most of the meat, when carved or cut into narrow strips, is ready for such dishes as ham pie, scalloped ham and macaroni, scalloped eggs and ham salad, ham a la King and filling for vegetables. Some of these will easily solve the 1-dish meal question.

Not a bit of the meat need go to waste, for all the trimmings and pieces around the bone, when carefully cut off and then chopped or ground fine, offer the basis for attractive meat dishes, as creamed or molded dishes, croquettes, loaves, souffles, timbales or mousques. Try one of two new recipes each time when you buy a ham.

MINCED HAM, SWEDISH STYLE
One cup browned ham, three tablespoons butter, one tablespoon grated cheese, one tablespoon butter, one cup milk, salt, pepper, parsley, eight slices bread, one egg, one cup of milk. Warm the stock and add a cup of milk. Add to this the butter and flour rubbed to a paste. Stir constantly until the mixture begins to thicken. Then add ground ham and seasonings.

When it has thickened, spread it on slices of bread which have been moistened in milk and allowed to cool. Dip the bottoms of the slices into the beaten egg diluted with milk, and try in meat drippings or butter. Garnish the top with finely chopped parsley and serve as a breakfast or luncheon dish.

DRESSES AND COATS SHOW HOBBLE HEM

Quite unexpected is a silhouette which presents something very like a "hobble" hem combined with an exaggeratedly bloused top. Yet this silhouette has crept into our midst and is already a favorite. Many of the new evening gowns show this outline and not a few day coats. Naturally in the case of a crepe blouse effect from the hips up is modified. Still the idea is in evidence. Where evening gowns are concerned the hobble hem is often quite prominent and really it is very becoming to tall and slender figures. No stout woman, however, ought to dream of adopting it.

We still have plenty of width in the lower part of dress or coat, but the soft folds are so cleverly manipulated that the silhouette seems straight.

Gorgeous are the new evening wraps in which ermine--natural or dyed--is combined with silver lace, or with crepe de chine glistening with diamante embroidery. Collars are generous, forming an ideal frame for a pretty face. Fur is served on an idea presented by a blond actress. This is for a glorious white evening wrap with a collar of white fox which measures at least 20 inches in height at the back, the sides dwindling away in charming fashion.

FASHION HINTS

A LONG BOW
An evening wrap of unusual distinction comes in chateau velvet and has a large bow of the velvet in the back which begins at the collar line and ends at the hem.

NEW DANCE FROCK

PURPLE USED MORE
All shades of lavender and purple are seen this year, not only for the main color of a frock or negligee, but is rivaling the famous green one.

MAKE TURKEY A LA KING WITH THANKSGIVING DINNER LEFT-OVERS

BY SISTER MARY
Unless your guests have phenomenal appetites there are sure to be left-overs. Every hostess wants to be sure there's an abundance of all her viands and she's bound to provide too much.

The clever use of the left-overs prolongs the pleasure of the holiday and reduces the cost of the dinner as a whole.

In the dinner planned no extravagant vegetables or desserts or out-of-season delicacies were suggested. The turkey held the center of the stage.

Good sized pieces of the turkey, cut of course be served cold neatly arranged on a platter and garnished with cranberry conserve. But the "pickings" on the bones require some manipulation so the following suggestions may not come amiss.

The first recipe uses any soup that may be left. In case the soup "came out even" for the dinner, milk can be substituted.

TURKEY AU GRATIN
Two tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup liquid (milk or soup), 1 cup turkey cut in small pieces, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup coarse buttered crumbs.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add liquid, stirring constantly. Add celery and bring to the boiling point. Stir constantly and let boil three minutes. Add turkey, salt and pepper if milk was used and turn into a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until crumbs are brown.

Whenever turkey or any fowl that has been thoroughly cooked is reheated, care must be taken not to overcook the meat. The meat in the dish for the meat becomes like so much cotton. Any part of the made dish that requires actual cooking must be done without the meat as in the above recipe.

Turkey a la King is so good that the cook is glad of the necessity to serve it.

TURKEY A LA KING
Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups rich milk, 1 1/2 cups diced turkey, 1 pimento, 1/2 cup broken mushroom caps, 1 egg yolk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1/4 squares of toast.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper and bring to the boiling point. In the meantime saute the mushrooms in 2 tablespoons butter for five minutes. When the sauce boils add the pimento cut in strips, the saute mushrooms and turkey. Stir in the egg yolk well beaten and serve at once on hot toast.

The egg yolk of course can be omitted and the turkey can be reduced to 1 cup.

Turkey timbales are delicious and unusual.

TURKEY TIMBALES
One cup finely chopped cold cooked turkey, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons stale bread crumbs, from soft part of loaf, 2 1/2 cups milk, 1 1/2 tablespoons minced parsley, 2 eggs, 1 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 teaspoon pepper, celery salt.

Melt butter, add bread crumbs and milk and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add turkey, salt, pepper, celery salt, parsley and eggs slightly beaten. Turn into buttered individual molds, having molds not more than two-thirds full and place in a pan of hot water. Cover with buttered paper and bake twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Remove from molds and serve with creamed cauliflower or peas.

Turkey is delicious combined with pineapple and celery as a salad.

When the bones are quite free from meat, break the carcass in pieces, cover with cold water and slowly bring to the boiling point. Add an onion cut in thin slices, some celery tops and a pint can of tomatoes. Simmer for an hour and strain. Then add 1 1/2 cup cooked rice and you will have a perfectly good soup.

Turkey soup usually means the last of the turkey but it will be welcomed with a sigh of relief if the left-overs have been painstakingly made and served.

with seeds removed and flesh finely minced, onion grated, olives, nuts and 1 tablespoon minced pimento. Add mayonnaise to make moist and serve on a bed of lettuce. Garnish with strips of pimento and slices of hard cooked egg. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST--Grape juice, cereal cooked with milk, thin cream, codfish puffs, toasted corn break, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON--Cream of spinach, soup, croquettes, eggplant salad, rye bread, fresh peach butter, cornflake macaroons, mince pie.

DINNER--Roast of brochette, curried rice, creamed lima beans, salad of mixed greens, peach cranberry pudding with hard sauce, graham rolls, milk, coffee.

If the fat calories need increasing in the luncheon the cereal can be topped with a spoonful of whipped cream. The child or grown up person who is underweight should use lots of cream since this is one of the most easily digested fats available. If the milk is half cream and half milk, popularity is increased and half milk is much the better. Plenty of olive oil on all salads is recommended for the too thin person.

Eggplant salad is quite unusual and very good.

EGGPLANT SALAD
Two cups diced and cooked eggplant, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, paprika, 1 rule French dressing, 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/4 cup diced celery 1 green pepper, 1 tablespoon minced ripe olives, 1 small onion, 4 tablespoons chopped English walnut meats, 1 pimento, 1 hard cooked egg, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Pare eggplant and cut in half-inch cubes. Cook in boiling salted water to which a little lemon juice has been added until tender but not mushy or broken. Drain and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika and chill. When perfectly cold pour over French dressing and sauce and let stand 20 minutes. Drain and add celery, pepper

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

The letter which Cherry Groomed upon the sewing machine was on plain white, unmarked commercial bond paper, and its three paragraphs had been neatly written without typographical error, upon a standard size of paper. There was no date, no address or name of the writer. It began, without salutation, other than the words:

"Miss Cherry Lane: You are young and beautiful. Life holds many good things in store for you, if you will reconsider your recent decision to marry with a man who has one foot in the grave. A friend who must remain anonymous urges you to publish at once a denial of yesterday's printed report of your engagement to Mr. Ralph Cluny. No good can come to you or to him if you persist in a course of demoralization to wed old age and millions.

"If you act quickly and with dignity, to end your unfortunate engagement, you will not be sorry, will not go unrewarded in a material way.

"If you do not, certain facts about your past will undoubtedly be called to Mr. Cluny's attention. Have you told him of your little romance, culminating so suddenly at Darrow, with a certain Mr. Albert Ettleson? Perhaps you have not yet had time to tell him all of the interesting details of your very interesting past, details of which are fully known to many, including the unknown friend who is giving you this kindly advice."

The shameful, insinuating bit of blackmail ended there, abruptly, without a signature. Faith stared for a long minute at the neatly blocked paragraphs, but her eyes, rigid with horror, could not separate one letter from another after that first reading which had turned her blood cold.

"The blackmail!" The nerve of 'em thinking they can screw me off with cheap tricks like this! Cherry snatched at the letter, but Faith laid a hand, palm down, upon it. "No, don't tear it up!" she roused herself from her trance of horror. "Let me keep it. I can't believe that any of Mr. Cluny's relatives would have stooped so low as to send you an anonymous, blackmailing letter."

"Some shyster lawyer did it!" Cherry's voice was venomous with anger. "A stenographer--a damned good stenographer at that--wrote that letter. See how it's blocked out, in the latest style in business correspondence? And not a single mistake or clause. I'll bet anything that blotter, Albee Albright, went to see a lawyer yesterday and gave him a free hand in frightening me off."

"But how did a lawyer know about--about Ettleson? Faith's distress and bewilderment grew as she tried to see.

"Good Lord, I don't know. These shyster lawyers have to-ups with rotten private detectives, who root around and find out things you'd never dream of. A dozen people saw us in Darrow. Ettleson himself might have blabbed. Oh, well, I'm not going to worry about it. That's exactly what the cowards want me to do. If they fool with me, I'll marry the old boy today, and then they can howl their heads off for all I care."

"Don't do that!" Faith begged, between tears and terror. "They think I don't dare show the letter to Mr. Cluny!" Cherry raged. "But I'll show 'em! I'll take this letter to him and tell him the whole story of Albert Ettleson! Nothing really happened. You can back me up on that--you and Bob Hathaway. I didn't intend for a minute to have anything to do with Ettleson, and I can make Ralph believe me. Why, it will convince him of my innocence if I show him this letter--something he never dreamed I'd do--and he'll be all the crazier to marry me."

Faith rose and put her arms around her angry, trembling sister. "I believe that's the best thing to do, honey--if you won't call it Albee Albright, honey, tell him everything else that might come up to cause you trouble. About all your foolish little affairs--Chester Hart, Bill Warren, Bob Hathaway, Albert Ettleson, Chris Wiley--"

Color flooded Cherry's face. "I can't tell him about Chris, Faith. I--I--I love myself away sure, if I talk to him about Chris. I--I'm afraid of Chris, Faith. He can wrap me around his finger. He's the only person in this world I'm afraid of. If I don't marry old Mr. Cluny, Chris will get me. And if I marry Chris, he'll break me into little bits and fling me out into the gutter. I'm afraid of Chris, Faith."

There was a beautiful tenderness and sympathy in Faith's face as she bent to kiss the quivering mouth of her little sister. "I'll do anything I can to help you, Cherry. And I won't nag you any more about Mr. Cluny. Are you going to have a big wedding?" "I didn't intend to," Cherry flung back her head and her eyes glittered with anger and pride. "But I'll now!" Cherry turned to Faith and said, "I'll have the sweetest wedding this town ever saw. Mr. Cluny's a member of St. Peter's--all the swell, arc Episcopalian, it seems--and I'll have a church ceremony, with bridesmaids and flower girls and a reception at the Randolph Hotel. You'll be my maid of honor, Faith, and we'll knock their eyes out, say, and we'll again, skipped like a light-hearted child, as she ran away to get ready for the shopping expedition.

Before dressing, Faith telephoned to Aunt Hattie, to ask her to stay with Mrs. Lane.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

By this time it was close to night, and up spoke Scouty Tynymite. "I think that we will hide our cart behind the shed," said he. "And then we'll find the place to sleep. I'm sure the food will safely keep until the morn when we will be as hungry as can be."

And all the time one Tynymite was looking on in keen delight. "Twice Clowdy, who had planned to play a joke upon the land, 'They've stopped their search for me,' he thought, 'and so a lesson they'll be taught. Their food will soon be missing, which they will not understand.'"

The tribe soon left their little cart, and for the haystack, made a dart. The voice of Clowdy broke out clear. "We'll sleep up in the hay," Clowdy laughed Clowdy, in the tree. "They're leaving all their food for me. They surely all will be surprised when comes another day."

He waited for an hour or so, then thought that it was safe to go and have a feast all by himself, on food they'd left behind. He shinned down the old tree trunk, and slipped and toppled down kerplunk, but shucks, it didn't hurt him, so he really didn't mind.

And then he raced back to the shed, "Oh, me, oh my, oh me," he said, "in seeing what was in the cart 'Here's where I have my fling.' Per-haps his act was rather rude, but I'll be climbed up in the food, and eat right down to eat his fill, and eat it like a king."

"Tomorrow we will see some fun," and Clowdy when the meal was done. "Just think what all the Tynymites will say when they appear. I guess the safest place for me, is back up in that maple tree. Then I can see their big surprise before they know I'm here."

LETTERS MAY RUIN OR MAKE LIFE

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"SHE has finished the letters with characters venomously and hatefully curved," begins a poem by John Crowe Ransom.

Mr. Ransom writes of a woman, who, driven to despair by her lover's conduct, puts what she thinks of him in a letter and sends it off by messenger.

Instantly she is sorry. But the mischief is done, the letter gone beyond recall, and her life ruined.

Letter-writing is a mean sort of revenge. It has its match only in the one-way telephone trade that smashes up the receiver at the end and waits for no answer. The letter may not be a revenge--it may merely put forth reason for the righteous wrath of the composer, but even so it will, in all probability, behave as most homecomings, and bring not unhappiness and trouble to the author than to the recipient.

The difference between the spoken word and the written word is the difference between a word and a deed. The spoken word is a word, and the written word is a deed. The spoken word is a word, and the written word is a deed.

One writes stamps itself indelibly, not only upon the mind of the reader, but upon the mind of the writer as well. It is the principle of the written recitation in school--to establish facts irrad-ably on the brain.

The written word is a live tangible thing--a creation to be despised, treasured, flaunted, or bartered. It has an influence for good or an influence for bad. We should hesitate to produce a devilish painting or a warped statue--why give way to an impulse that gives just as material from to an ugly thought?

Few people have written unkind letters that they were not sorry for almost instantly as soon as posted. That is the way with letters. The emotional strain is relieved--it passes from the nerves of the aggrieved writer through the point of the pen to the paper. One is less bitter when the words are down.

An old gentleman once said, "I have learned to let social letters that I write, lie overnight. Half of them go into the waste basket in the morning."

We might try that.

Miss Meusel Well Known In Appleton

Miss Lucille Meusel, coloratura soprano, who will sing at a concert recital sponsored by the Appleton Woman's club at Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday evening, is well known at Appleton people because of her many appearances on the concert and dramatic stage during her student days here.

When she first entered Lawrence conservatory, Miss Meusel studied only piano although she had taken voice lessons when she was a pupil at St. Joseph academy in Green Bay. Her last two years at the conservatory however included both voice and piano study. Miss Meusel studied voice with Deal Carl J. Waterman and piano with Ludolph Arens of Green Bay, then professor of piano at the conservatory.

She was the first girl soloist to travel with the Lawrence College Glee club, and also acted as soloist with the girl's glee club of the school. During her career here, she was pianist with the Lawrence College Concert Four, a troop of students who appeared in towns and cities near Appleton. The three other members of the group were a soprano, tenor and reader.

COLLEGE COEDS HOLD SERIES OF WINTER PARTIES

Parties for Lawrence college coeds will be sponsored by the Women's Self-Government association twice a month through the winter, and the first of these will be held on Thanksgiving day at Russell Sage dormitory, according to an announcement made by the committee appointed to have charge of the social program.

Miss Miriam Russell of Appleton, is a member of the committee. Others who will work are Miss Dorothy Wischell, of Manitowish, chairman, Miss Jean Christensen of Oshkosh, Miss Mary Dunbar of Fond du Lac, Miss Leora Calkins of Shawano, Miss Mary Whiting of Brandon, Miss Jeanette Jones of Menasha, Miss Ruth Parkinson of Green Bay, and Miss Gertrude Carbaugh of Elgin, Ill. Frank Johnson's orchestra will play for dancing at the first matinee dance on Thursday.

ST. ELIZABETH CLUB HOSTESS AT CARD PARTY

St. Elizabeth club will hold an open card party Saturday, Nov. 27, at Elk club. A "Puritan" luncheon will be served in connection with the party. The luncheon will commence at 12:30 and will continue until all have been served.

Following the luncheon bridge and schafkopf will be played. This will be third open card party to be given this year by the club. Mrs. D. P. Steinberg is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the party.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

The Congregational College club will meet at 5:30 Sunday afternoon in the church parlors. Devotional services will be conducted by the members and a social hour will follow the business meeting and program.

Mrs. A. T. Pynn, 1015 N. Morrison-st., entertained Circle No. 12 of the Woman's association of the Congregational church at a regular meeting Friday afternoon. Plans were completed by the circle to take charge of a food bazaar and fish pond at the Christmas bazaar to be given by all circles of the association next Thursday. Mrs. Charles Maesch is captain of the group. Mrs. Henry Madison will entertain the circle at its next meeting after Thanksgiving.

More than $225 was realized at the Christmas bazaar which was given Friday afternoon by the Baptist Women's union in the building formerly occupied by the Langstadt-Meyer Co. A cafeteria lunch was served in connection with the bazaar. About 125 persons were served. Mrs. E. J. Peterson, president of the union, was general chairman of the bazaar and Mrs. Elsie Taylor was chairman of arrangements for the cafeteria.

Ten members of Circle No. 11 of the Congregational church attended the meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. George Loos, 715 N. Onida-st. Mrs. Max Elias is captain of the group.

GIRLS SEEKING CAGING GAMES

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, teaching at Pendleton University, in a few friends among the radical student set, including ERIC WATERS, WIL WETTERER, and EYE GERHART, popular town widow. Dr. PETER DORN, admiring her, is distressed at her student friendships, because DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, his superior on the discipline committee, disapproves of them.

MYRA ALDRICH is jealous of Judith, because Eric shows her attention. Judith runs off to the city for a weekend of relaxation. There she sees the wife of Dean Timothy Brown, escorted by a handsome young man. Returning to Pendleton, she finds Eric on the same train, and the dean sees them alight at the station together. Mrs. Brown sends for Judith. Judith promises not to speak of seeing her in town and a friendship begins between them. The dean, coming home during this conversation, hints that he thinks Judith and Eric went away together.

Judith leaves the house in anger. On the way home she is accosted by "KITTY" SHEA, a town ruffian, who threatens to tell of seeing her dining at a roadhouse with Eric some time before, just before the place was raided. Shea is frightened away by two men students.

Judith is awakened by a noise on the porch that night and, opening the front door, catches Myra in her arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

Judith bent over the unconscious girl. "Myra," she whispered but there was no answer. Only a stertorous breathing came from between the parted lips, and the fumes of alcohol hung heavily about her.

Judith shifted Myra's weight and began the laborious ascent. Near the top of the stairs, the light from above fell on the closed eyelids. Myra stirred and clenched one hand over her chest. "Fire," she murmured and began to cry weakly.

The struggle seemed interminable; but at last Judith staggered into Myra's room and laid her burden on the bed. She began to pull off her outer clothing, stopping now and then to chafe her wrists and temples. Myra sat up, crying "Fire," again, and clutching at her heart. "Judith, I'm burning. Water!"

Judith left her with her head buried in the pillows, feebly sobbing. She came back with her electric percolator in a moment. She was pouring out a cup of steaming black coffee when Myra began to pray. "Please God, don't let me die, with this fire in my stomach. What'll Eric do if I die? Oh, I forgot. Eric doesn't care." Her muttering trailed off in a gasp.

Judith forced her to take the coffee, supporting her with one hand and holding the cup in the other.

Myra looked at her curiously, and Judith smiled faintly. Myra caught the smile and began to cry brokenly. "You're laughing at me. And I'm going to die."

Judith began rummaging through the pages of the University directory, looking for the medical division.

"What are you doing?" called Myra. "You can't send for anybody. I'll be kicked out of school if you do. D'you hear?"

The directory fell from Judith's hands. She watched the girl on the bed for some time, frowning anxiously. Then she began to pick up Myra's clothes and hang them in the closet. A tiny square of tinted pasteboard lay on the floor at the bottom of the heap. It proved to be a tally card for bridge. On one side was Myra's name, and on the other, Eric's.

Judith left the room and crept down the stairs. In the lower hall she pulled the telephone on its cord into the closet under the stairs, and gave the Sigma Psi number in a muffled voice.

A sleepy voice answered. "No'm," it said. "Mistah Waters ain't in. Been gone all night."

Judith crawled wearily back up the stairs. Myra was talking incoherently and tossing about on the bed. Judith began her vigil once more. Re-current waves of nausea exhausted the sick girl.

It was dawn when Myra lay sleeping quietly enough to be left alone. Judith turned out the electric lights. In another hour, the Steadyway household would be astir. Already, sparrows were twittering in the trees near the window pane.

Judith drew the blankets high about her patient's throat, and opened the window wide for a few minutes. The fresh dawn breeze swept through the room, and it seemed to her that Myra breathed more softly.

When she had lowered the sash halfway and drawn the blind, she stooped out. A door across the hall stood ajar. After a moment, the face of the older Miss Wensley appeared in the crack. "Anything wrong? I heard you moving about."

"Miss Aldrich has been sick," Judith explained. "But she's sleeping now and I hope nobody will disturb her."

In her own room, she made a "Don't Disturb," placard and, going into the hall again, hung it on Myra's door.

There was just time for a half-hour nap before she must dress for the day's work.

classes. I couldn't come any sooner. How do you feel?"

Myra covered her face and began to cry hysterically. "I wish I were dead," she sobbed over and over. Judith sat down beside her. "Hush," she said. "You don't want the others to know there's anything wrong. I told them you had a sick headache. Did anybody come in during the day?"

Myra shook her head. "I don't care who comes in. I tell you nothing matters from now on."

Judith rose decisively. "Have you had anything to eat?"

The girl looked at her reproachfully. "Do you think I could touch food now? I'm too miserable even to think about it."

"Nonsense," said Judith, as she left the room. She came back with a box of bouillon cubes and some hot water. "We won't do any talking till you've drunk this," she said, peremptorily.

Myra nodded. When Judith proffered the bouillon, she took it meekly. "It isn't any taste," she said, ungratefully.

Judith grinned. "Just the same, it will do you good. Now you rest while I bring some water."

She brought a basin and towels and bathed Myra's flushed face and hands. Then she brought powder and rouge from the dressing table. "You shan't see yourself till I've finished with you," she said sadly, and Myra endured a watery smile.

"There," she said, handing Myra a mirror. "You don't look sick now." Myra looked at herself gravely. Then she held out her hand to Judith. "You're good, Judith. Too good. I haven't any right to touch you. I'm so ashamed."

Judith sat down on the foot of the bed. "I suppose you won't have any peace till we've talked this out, Myra." The other girl nodded. "First of all," she began, "this is the first time I've ever been—drunk. Maybe you won't believe that. But it's true. I don't quite know how this happened."

"You were with Eric, I think," said Judith, quietly.

Myra flushed hotly. "But it wasn't his fault," she cried. "I was with him at the Sig Psi house, playing bridge after dinner. Then a crowd of the boys and their girls got a couple of cars and started for a spin out of town about eleven o'clock. I told them it was too late, but they said, 'Spoilsport!' and so I went ahead and kept still."

"There was a cute girl down from Chicago, that all the boys were hanging a line to. Pretty soon, I saw that Eric wasn't interested in me. He kept leaning over to kid with her. So when we got to the top of a hill and the cars stopped, I jumped out and ran to the car ahead. Two of the other men who didn't have any girls sorta took me under their wing. After while they brought the bottle out, and I remembered that Eric had said earlier in the ride, 'Don't give any to the girls. It's dynamite.'"

"I was so mad at him I took a big drink of the stuff. And after that—"

She broke off, pressing her hands against her eyes.

Judith spoke gently. "Don't agonize, Myra. You've come out of this luckily. Nobody knows but me. And it will never happen again."

Myra threw her head back. "You can bet your life it never will! Do you think I'm so low as ever, to touch the vile stuff again?"

"No," Judith answered, "of course not."

"But you will be my friend again, Jude? I'm awfully ashamed to have you do much for me, when I've been a regular devil to you. I'd been in your place last night. I'd have let little fool Myra die."

"I WAS frightened," said Judith. "Just you should die. But I dared not call a doctor. Let's forget it. Shall we?"

Myra shook her head dolefully. "I

A sleepy voice answered. "No'm," it said. "Mistah Waters ain't in. Been gone all night."

Judith smiled. "I had to meet my

Past Officers Of Star Are Honor Guests

Past Matrons and Past Patrons night will be observed by Fidelity chapter, Order of Eastern Star on Wednesday evening, Nov. 24, in Masonic temple. A banquet will be served at 6:30 to which all members of Eastern Star are invited.

Past matrons and past patrons will have charge of initiation of a class of four candidates after the banquet. Those who will fill the chairs are Miss Mabel Wolter as worthy matron; Peter Drysdale, worthy patron; Miss Ada Myers, associate matron; Mrs. L.

doubt if I ever can. But I won't talk about it any more."

Judith was on her way to the library just before dinner when Will Wethered overtook her near the president's house.

"Jude," he said earnestly, "do you know where Eric Waters is?" She shook her head.

"Well, he was out all night, and in the wee small hours, a woman called for him on the phone. The houseman said she seemed worried. It's all very mysterious, and I can tell you the chapter doesn't like it much."

"I'm sorry," said Judith, curtly "but that isn't of paramount importance to me." She turned off toward the library.

A few steps farther on, she met Dr. Dorn going toward the administration building.

"I suppose you are on your way to Dean Brown's conference, as I am," he said.

"Conference?" she queried.

"Why, yes, all the bulletin boards are placarded. I don't know what the emergency is."

Judith fell in step with him. "It's a bore," she complained. "But I suppose I'll have to go."

The conference room was almost filled when they entered. Dean Brown came hurrying in after them, carrying a newspaper over his arm.

There was a banner headline in letters three inches high. Judith spelled out the words as he passed, though they were upside down: "EXTRA! TWO STUDENTS DIE OF POISON BOOZE!"

Dean Brown and Eric clash dramatically in the next chapter, and Judith's position is endangered when she stands up for the young man.

 EXPLAIN IT IF YOU CAN
 By Wallace M. Bayliss
 Insurance salesmen state to all they meet. This is a sad world full of accidents; Some people get kicked by a horse's feet, And others bark their shins upon a fence. Still others, through explosions, lose their sight, And on the streets forermore must beg; But here's one thing that doesn't seem quite right-A bill collector never breaks his leg! Pedestrians step on a rusty nail, Blood poison sets in and away they go; The relatives of such folks never fail To get a check for quite a lot of dough; But there are some folks who will never get An accident insurance juicy check. For instance, no one anywhere has yet Observed a landlord fall and break his neck!
 Poor widow stub their toes and break an arm, And autos run down children on the street; In divers ways folks come to sudden harm, Such grief hits both the poor and the elite; But if you borrow money from a chap, The very moment that the money's lent, Fate smiles on him and takes him in her lap- That fellow NEVER has an accident!

NEARBY
TOWNSU. S. LEGION HEAD
TO ATTEND MEETING
AT WAUPACA SUNDAYState Officers of Veterans
Organization Also on List of Speakers

Special to Post-Crescent
Waupaca—The Eighth district Legion meeting will be held at the American legion hall here Sunday beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. The following officers are expected to be present: National Commander Howard Savage; Past Commander H. L. Plummer now national executive committee; Past Commander Hugo L. Keller, who will be a speaker; Departmental Vice Commander Hitz who will give an address on community activities; District Commander Merrill who will speak on service clubs; Frank Schneider, Sixth district Commander, Commanders from New London, Marion, Unity and other posts will also be speakers. Howard Desert, state chairman of trip to France next year, will speak on plans which are being made for the occasion.

Mrs. Richard Mansfield, wife of the noted actor, will speak at Rural church next Wednesday evening, Nov. 24 as a benefit guest at the Rural Fellowship council at the Rural church. Mrs. Mansfield is one of the sponsors of the Council of World Fellowship, and the local fellowship council having recently been established at Rural makes it the first unit in a famous community—thus giving them the opportunity of hearing her great words. Mrs. Mansfield will read poems from Edwin Markham, Henry Van Dyke, Angela Morgan and William Shakespeare. Harry E. Edmonds, founder of International house, New York city, may also be present. International House was built by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. for foreign students studying in New York city. Mrs. Mansfield is giving her services as a benefit—only her expenses being paid; all money will go into the Rural Fellowship council treasury.

Members of the county board of all county officials and members of the chamber of Commerce were entertained at a smoker at Castle hall Thursday evening.

A son was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Eder of Waupaca. Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Lord left Wednesday for their home in California after a visit with relative and friends in Waupaca.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bender of Chippewa Falls, are in the city. They were called here by the illness and recovery of the former's father, Lawrence Bender.

LAWRENCE BENDER DIES
Lawrence Bender died at the home of his son Ed Bender on Royalton st. at 3:45 Friday morning. Mr. Bender was born in Germany, Nov. 29, 1849, coming to America when he was a young man. In 1876 he was united in marriage to Miss Nellie Murphy of Milwaukee at Milwaukee, where they resided for a number of years. Later they made their home in Waupaca. To this union were born four children: Will and John, deceased; Ed of Waupaca, and Robert of Chippewa Falls. Nine grandchildren also survive. The funeral will be held at 3:30 Monday morning at St. Mary's Catholic church. The Rev. Father A. O. Riendler, pastor of the church will officiate. Burial will be in Lakeside cemetery.

The five department was called to the home of John Montgomery, residing near Wisconsin Veterans home Friday morning. A gasoline engine had exploded in the barn. The fire was extinguished however before the fire department arrived and no damage was done.

Although snow continued to fall all day Thursday, a large number of persons from different parts of the county attended the annual turkey trot. Both sides of Main-st were lined with automobiles, as well as many side streets. The turkey was given away in spite of the weather. Ed Bender threw the balls from the top of different buildings on Main-st. The following persons received the turkeys: Bob Bender, city; Gordon Danielsen, city; W. Wilcox, city; Mrs. Leonard Gharke, Manawa; Mrs. Paul Peterson, Farmington; Alfred Nolenberg, of Ogdensburg; George O'Neill, Lind; Robert Zempke, Manawa; Ed. Domke, Manawa; Mrs. Goldsborough, Farleyville; Ed. Erickson, town of Waupaca; H. Lindahl, Manawa; Richard Gahrke, Manawa; Calvin McLaughlin, city; E. C. Scheibe, Amberst; Fred Jenner, city; Ed. A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Descendant Of La Fayette
Observes 92nd Birthday

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—A very tiny old lady whose eyes have grown dim through the passing of years Wednesday celebrated her ninety-second birthday anniversary. She is Mrs. Lucinda Mur-jar Baird, a direct descendant of Marquis La Fayette. Her grandfather was one of the body guards of General George Washington.

Mrs. Baird lives with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Brandow, Oshkosh, and is keenly interested in life as she finds it today. She is one of those blessed with an ageless spirit, and both she and her daughter maintain that these recent years of her life have been almost entirely free from illness.

The story of her long life reads like the pages from an Emerson Hough novel, so eventful have the years been. She was born in Missouri.

NEW LONDON
SOCIETY

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Members of the Tri C. club of Congregational church entertained at a social in the church parlors Thursday evening to which the public was invited. A program was enjoyed, the following numbers being presented: vocal solos, Mrs. Rudolph, musical readings, Mrs. Carlton Reuter; piano duet, the Misses Alice Fellenz and Edna Allen; trombone solos by E. Louis Reuter, accompanied by his son Watson. The Misses Jean Dessel and Ruth Beumler and Rev. M. P. Freeling gave reports of the recent convention of Congregational young people held at Sheboygan. Following the program a lunch was served by club members.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church held a special meeting Thursday evening to which the public was invited. Rev. O. D. Cannon, secretary of the retired ministers fund, was the speaker. A pantomime entitled "Rock of Ages" was given by the following members of the league: Clara Hall, Beatrice Watson, Marie DeYoung, Dorothy Bell, Hazel Beck, and Elsie Roese.

"This organization will hold a 'Pilgrims Party' in the church parlors Wednesday evening, Nov. 24, for League members. The committee will be composed of the cabinet members.

The annual smoker given by members of the Masonic lodge was held at the Masonic temple Thursday evening. A duck dinner was served to 96 by a committee appointed from the Eastern Star composed of the following ladies: Mesdames E. W. Wendlandt, B. Finger, F. L. Zaig, I. E. Cooley, L. E. Cole, J. W. Monsted, C. D. Feathers, R. S. Dawson and H. B. Crisley. Music during the dinner hour was furnished by the Sleep Chasers, an orchestra composed of high school boys.

Attorney Leo Nohl of Milwaukee was guest of honor and speaker. The evening was spent at cards. Masons from Appleton, Shiocton, Manawa and Clintonville lodges were present.

The bake sale held under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary Thursday afternoon at Vandenberg Grocery netted about $20. The committee in charge included Mesdames Bert Schaller, A. C. Borchardt and H. Ladwig. This was the first of a series of alternate bake sales and card parties which will be sponsored monthly by the Auxiliary during the winter months.

The Neighborhood club met Friday with Mrs. J. W. Monsted. The next meeting will be postponed until some time after Thanksgiving.

The Catholic Womens club will hold its next meeting Wednesday, Dec. 8, at which time the annual election of officers will take place.

The second annual meeting of the Waupaca County People's echo meeting will be held at the Congregational church at Royalton Sunday, Nov. 21, at 2 o'clock. Young people from all Sunday schools in the county are urged to attend. A splendid social time is planned and a number of good musical numbers will be provided. The rally will be in charge of Rev. Henry J. Freeling pastor of the local Congregational church. Adults are invited to attend.

NEW SALES RECORD FOR GRAHAM BROTHERS
For the first time in the history of Graham Brothers more than 1000 of their trucks and motor coaches have been delivered in a single week. In fact by Dodge Brothers dealers in the United States and Canada. The record of 1041 during the week ended July 31 follows closely the record of 896 delivered during the week ended July 3 and is more than twice the figure for the best week last year. Compared with the corresponding week of 1925, when 347 were sold the gain is 694 trucks or 200 per cent.

During five weeks ended July 26 deliveries of trucks and motor coaches totaled 4036. The increase over the preceding five weeks was 15.7 per cent and over the five weeks ended August 1 last year was 2408 units or 143 per cent. "The rapidly growing demand for a dependable transportation unit of 1-ton capacity," declares Mr. R. K. Walter, of the Motor Motor Co., local Dodge Brothers dealer, "is evidenced by the increasing ratio of this capacity to the heavier trucks, 2150 or 52.6 per cent of the total deliveries of Graham Brothers trucks and motor coaches during July were of this capacity. The fact that prior to introduction of the G-Boy, Graham Brothers trucks were of that one third of their output was of that capacity and that now over half are of that type shows clearly the constantly increasing approval of this sturdy little truck."

LAABS & SHEPHERD CONDUCT BIG AUCTION SALE
A successful farm auction sale was conducted Thursday, November 18th, on the farm of Adam Stark, Route 26, near Hortonville, Wis. The crowd was large, being estimated at about 600 people. All the personal effects were disposed of at very good figures. The farm alone was sold for $5,000. The sale was handled by Laabs & Shepherd, Real Estate Dealers of Appleton, Wis. Emory Meltz acted in the capacity of auctioneer.

Laabs & Shepherd have conducted several successful auctions this summer and under their system the owner of the farm is charged a flat rate for their service. Laabs & Shepherd assume all the responsibility of advertising the sale and attending to the numerous details that come up thus relieving the farmer of a mass of details that otherwise would consume much of his time and bring attendant worry.

The method of advertising used is very thorough and produces very good results. Auction bills are sent by mail to every farmer in the territory enabling him to read the sale offerings at his leisure in his own home and not being compelled to rely upon information hastily gathered by reading auction bills tacked upon bill boards and telephone calls, while driving by at a fast clip. Considerable newspaper advertising is also done thus assuring complete coverage of every rural home.

MISS SEGAL WINNER OF FIRST PLACE IN SPEAKING CONTEST

Winner Receives Silver Cup and Represents School in Valley Meet

Miss Eunice Segal was awarded first place in the Dame declamatory contest at Appleton high school Friday evening with her reading of "The Doll in the Pink Silk Dress" by Leonard Merrick. The winner was given a silver loving cup by George Dame, sponsor of the contest and an alumnus of the school, and will represent the local school at the Fox River Forensic association declamatory contest at Sheboygan Dec. 10. About 300 persons attended the program. Adam Aitchison of the high school faculty presided and presented the trophy.

Second place was won by Miss Lois Kleehn who read "The Alien" by Norman Bruce, and third by Miss Beatrice Segal with "The Laughter of Leen" by Paul Richter. Miss Margaret Heckle and Miss Louise Marston received fourth and fifth places with their readings of "Yellow Butterflies" by Mary Shipman Andrews and "The Phantom Aeroplane" by W. D. Peely, respectively. The race was unusually close. They were Miss Lucille Veltz public speaking teacher at Lawrence, Mrs. A. Barry of the Appleton vocational school, and Mrs. J. F. Danner of the Bannister Dancing academy.

Musical selections were given by a high school string trio which included Carl Jebe, Wilmer Schaefer and assistant Roudoush. J. Raymond Walsh, assistant principal, who was scheduled for a solo, was unable to sing because of illness.

CALIFORNIA VEGETABLES SOLD IN LOCAL MARKETS

Fresh cauliflower and head lettuce from California growers are featured on Appleton markets this week. These vegetables are of the very best quality and the price is reasonable. Cauliflower sells at from 19 to 25 cents per heads and head lettuce from 5 to 15 cents each. (Leaf lettuce retails at 10 cents a bunch.)

Fresh radishes are selling at two bunches for 25 cents and fresh onions at 10 cents a bunch. Spanish onions retail at 2 for 15 cents. Home grown celery sells at from 10 to 15 cents a bunch and cabbage at from 10 to 15 cents a head. Potatoes retail at 45 cents a peck and from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel. Sweet potatoes sell at 5 cents a pound. Carrots retail at 5 cents a pound and rutabagas also are sold at 5 cents a pound.

Squash retails at 4 cents a pound and tomatoes at 25 cents a pound. Cucumbers sell at from 25 to 35 cents a peck and asparagus at $1.25 per bunch. Wax beans retail at 25 cents a pound and green beans at 30 cents a pound. Parsley sells at 10 cents a bunch and spinach at 25 cents a pound.

FORENSIC CLUB MEETS TO STUDY CONSTITUTION

A constitution will be presented at the meeting of the Forensic club at Appleton high school Monday afternoon. A committee was appointed several weeks ago by Adam Aitchison, faculty sponsor of the new organization, and has worked out a draft to be accepted by the members.

Carl Nelson is chairman of the committee, and other members are Miss Beatrice Segal, Aloysius Gage, and Donald McElhannon. Officers probably will be elected after the acceptance of the constitution.

QUARTET CALLED BACK FOR THIRTEEN ENCORES

Thirteen encores were called by the audience at the concert of the Nixon Male quartet at Immanuel Reformed church in Kaukauna sponsored by the Senior Kaukauna Endeavor society Friday evening. The quartet included George C. Nixon, first tenor; Charles Nixon McElathorn of Neenah, second tenor; Fred M. Nixon of Neenah first bass; William B. Johnson, second bass. Miss Esther Nau was accompanist for the organization.

PLAYS HERE

Prof. Arthur H. Arneke of Milwaukee, a noted organist, will play at the vesper services at First Methodist church Sunday afternoon. Mr. Arneke is professor of organ at the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music at Milwaukee and also at the Lawrence Conservatory. This is the second of a series of 22 weekly vesper services.

Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor, will conduct a short devotional and the Methodist mixed quartet and the mixed choir of 50 voices under the direction of Carl McKee will sing several numbers.

DEATHS

DORIS WOLFF.
Doris Annabel Wolff, 18 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Wolff, 725 N. State-st., died at her home at 8 o'clock Saturday. Burial will be held at Riverside cemetery.

M. H. BALLOU.
Word was received here by Arnold Knuppel of the death of his father-in-law, Minor H. Ballou of San Anselmo, Calif., which occurred Friday, Nov. 19. Mr. Ballou was a former paper manufacturer at Menasha. Mr. Knuppel will leave for his home at Menasha, Calif., after attending the funeral of his mother, Mrs. August Knuppel.

SIMON STRIEGLE.
Simon Striegle, 75, died at 3 o'clock Friday morning at his home at Black Creek following a week's illness. Mr. Striegle was born in Germantown, Sept. 13, 1851, and had lived in Black Creek for 23 years.

Survivors are one son, Henry of Bonners Springs, Kan.; two daughters, Miss Barbara Striegle and Mrs. Bertha Hein of Black Creek; one grandson, Jerome Hein of Black Creek; one brother, Martin, of Appleton, and one sister, Mrs. Barbara Berner of Seymour.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at St. Mary Catholic church with the Rev. J. Eschepky in charge. Interment will be in the parish cemetery.

LITTLE CHUTE WINS OVERTIME CAGE GAME

Two overtime periods were necessary to break a 7-7 tie in a hard-fought basketball game between Little Chute and Bear Creek high schools at Bear Creek Friday evening, the visitors finally winning the battle, 9-7. Neither team was able to score in the first extra period but the Chute team came through with a ringer in the second five minutes.

Frank McCleone, Bear Creek center, was the star of the game, making every one of his six seven points. J. Vanberg, Little Chute center, made five points for his team. S. Dempsey refereed the game.

CHILDREN OF JUNIOR SCHOOL HOLD PROGRAM

Stunts, games, and a cafeteria supper were included on the program for the class party of seventh grade pupils at the Roosevelt junior high school from 4 to 6:30 Friday afternoon. About 100 members of the class were present. Faculty sponsors of the affair were the class advisors: Merwin Clough, Miss Verda Zuehlke, Miss Grace Williamson, and Miss Margaret O'Leary. Two members of the social committee of the Roosevelt Parent-Teachers association, Mrs. P. P. Doherty and Mrs. Otto Polan, were guests.

Each home group planned and presented a stunt and these consisted of dancing, singing, tumbling and dramatic acts. Informal games were played in the gymnasium and a cafeteria supper was served.

The eighth grade pupils had their party from 7 to 9 o'clock the evening of Nov. 12, and the ninth grade affair will be held from 7 to 9:30 on the evening of Dec. 2. Faculty and parent sponsors for the eighth grade were: Miss Emma Voge, Werner Witten, Leonard Peterson, Miss Gladys Alger, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Traas, and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Cameron. Sponsors for the ninth grade will be: Miss Elizabeth Allen, Frank Wilson, Miss Edna Beckler, Miss Jean Jackson, Miss Josephine Broderick, Miss Elsie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Lothar G. Graef, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Millen.

MEN'S CLASS TO HOLD SERVICES AT KAUKAUNA

Members of the Friendship class of First Methodist church will conduct the evening services at Brokaw Memorial church at Kaukauna Sunday evening, Dec. 12, it was decided at the monthly business meeting and banquet of the organization, Friday evening at the church. An invitation to conduct the services was extended to the club by the Rev. Mr. Hilburn pastor. More than 50 members attended the meeting.

It also was decided to hold a Christmas party for members of the class and their wives and children on Friday evening, Dec. 17. The class voted to hold recreational meetings on alternate Wednesdays.

After the business meeting a recreational period was held in gymnasium. Indoor baseball was played.

COUNTY NURSE TALKS AT P-T CLUB MEETING

Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Oak Leaf Parent-Teachers association Tuesday evening, Nov. 16. A program composed of recitations and current events was given.

In her talk, Miss Klein stressed the importance of caring for the defects of children as soon as possible after her school visits. She also gave examples of carelessness at the time of contagious diseases. A chili luncheon followed the program. Miss Irene Maas is teacher at the school.

READER VISITS SUNDAY COZY

Miss Lois Kleehn, winner of second place in Appleton high school declamatory contest Friday evening, will read at the Sunday afternoon cozy of Appleton Womens club. Solos will be sung by Miss Annette Post, soprano, who will give the same selections used in a recital in which she appeared recently.

Miss Agnes Vanneman will be hostess at the affair and members of Eta Beta Pi supper club will serve tea. Girls and women of Appleton have been invited to come to the clubhouse from 4 to 7 o'clock Sunday afternoon through the winter, Miss Vanneman said.

HIGH SCHOOL NEEDS LARGER FACILITIES

course in character and conduct, it was said.

Pool rooms, ice cream parlors which permit dancing late in the evening, beauty and popularity contests and individuals who gamble and bet on high school games were deplored by the principal and the need for cooperation of these outside agencies stressed.

Some students and the public generally overemphasize the value of extra-curricular activities, particularly athletics. "We mustn't let the tail wag the dog," he said, and because of this tendency the principals of this valley went on record two weeks ago as being opposed to state championship contests of all kinds.

The college and its students are peace-setters socially for the high school, he said. College ideas are brought to parties and the students try to attend the high school functions, but they have been barred from all except the junior prom. When a gymnasium is provided, their financial assistance no longer will be necessary there, it was said.

"I was at the high school," covers a multitude of sins," the speaker said, for parents seem to accept that excuse without doubt, and do not realize that the student often has been other places since school.

The program of clubs, activities, and social parties was outlined by the principals of the junior high schools. A. G. Oosterhouse, F. B. Young and Dr. M. H. Small. Participation in extra-curricular activities, including athletics, depends on whether the students are up to standard in scholarship and citizenship, it was said. The adolescent craves a group life, Mr. Young stated, and the program of the schools tries to satisfy this.

Mrs. C. S. Shannon presented a plan for an entertainment consisting of a dance and card party for the teachers. It will be given by the board and Appleton Womens club.

TWO REPORT ON CONVENTION AT D. A. R. MEETING

Mrs. W. Ray Chaloner gave a report of the state regent's meetings which was held in connection with the state convention the latter part of October and Mrs. George Ashman told of some of the social activities at the convention at the regular monthly meeting of Appleton Chapter. Daughters of the American Revolution Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Ross Frampton, 133 E. Lawrence-st.

Mrs. P. O. Keicher gave a talk on Cooperation for the National Defense Movement. Twenty-one members of the chapter attended the meeting. Assistant hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. N. P. Mills, Miss Joan Mills, Miss Garnet Schmalz and Mrs. F. A. W. Hammond.

TWO SCHOOLS TO HOLD SOCIALS

Parent-Teacher associations of two schools are planning to hold box socials next Tuesday evening. There will be a box social and program at Pleasant Dale school District No. 5, Center at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and the Sunny View school, Black Creek will give a program and box social Tuesday evening at its school.

SURPRISE PROGRAM

A surprise program has been arranged for the weekly meeting of the Lions club at Conway hotel Monday noon. R. M. Connelly is in charge.

Talk on Citizenship
E. S. Godfrey, attorney, will speak on Citizenship at the meeting of members of the Girl Scout troops at 4:15 Monday afternoon at the clubhouse. The groups have been studying the subject and the lecture will be supplementary to the individual and troop work.

FEW PEOPLE KNOW HOW TO JUDGE REAL ANTIQUE ARTICLES

Furniture in Room Need Not Be of Same Finish to Harmonize

The average man or woman does not know a real piece of antique furniture when he sees it, in the opinion of E. H. Mueller, who operates a cabinet making shop at 313 E. Washington-st. In many cases the fine wood used in the antique has been covered by careless repainting or well meaning but ignorant handy men with a heavy coat of varnish or paint, that hides the real beauty of the wood, Mr. Mueller said.

"In the time I've been in business I have rejuvenated many old pieces of furniture that were regarded as worthless by the owners," Mr. Mueller declared. Many people bring old pieces of furniture to the shop to be repaired or refinished. Mr. Mueller recognizes the antique value of the article and advises a certain finish which will bring out the beauty of the wood. Many people object to taking his advice because they desire a certain stain or color, even though the beauty of the wood is hidden.

One of the most unusual jobs ever finished by Mr. Mueller was the complete rebuilding of a desk over 150 years old. The owners wanted the desk rebuilt for sentimental reasons and the fine grain of the wood in the desk had been covered by a cheap varnish which hid the actual beauty of the wood. He finished the desk and when the owner saw it he hardly recognized it as his own. Several parts of the desk were replaced, broken parts were repaired, holes and cracks were covered and the desk was like new when it was completed.

It was not unusual for the furniture of a room to be all of one finish or color or stain, according to Mr. Mueller. Real beauty lies in the bringing out the grain of the wood and no matter what the finish furniture will harmonize if one has an eye for beauty of grain.

Mr. Mueller does refinishing and repairing of any nature. He covers old furniture, refinishes old furniture that is being kept for sentimental reasons, antique articles that are of great value, varnishes and makes dining room sets, chairs, tables and any kind of furniture look like new.

Purchasing Agents Face Great Era, Says Babson

Babson Park, Mass.—Most of the articles written on the problems of production and distribution have placed special stress on sales and the salesman. Comparatively little is said about purchases and the purchasing agent. In this interview we have asked Mr. Babson to talk about purchases and the purchasing agent. This is his statement:

"About twenty-five years ago the United States discovered salesmanship. A few pioneers were the first to find the real possibilities of suggestion and persuasion; then, gradually the idea took hold and with the aid of advertising agencies this country has developed and still has the greatest army of high-grade salesmen in the world. From about 1800 to the end of the World war selling and advertising made tremendous progress. All during this period the selling end of business was the big talk; sales departments were organized, sales managers employed, and advertising campaigns carried out.

"A similar era of development has now arrived for the buying end of business. Purchasing agents are now facing one of the greatest opportunities that ever confronted any group of men in all the history of business. There are two main causes which should bring about these developments:

"(1) The general drift of commodity prices will probably be downward the coming years.

"(2) A flood of inventions and scientific developments are being brought out that are revolutionizing many industries. This means that for most businesses to succeed today they must keep abreast of the inventions and developments which might in any way affect them."

REQUIRE BETTER BUYING

"We are now in a period not unlike that which has followed other great wars and which is likely to continue for a number of years to come; namely, a period where the trend of commodity prices is downward. This is just the reverse of the past twenty-five years where we have had a market of slowly rising commodity prices. The new set of conditions now developing is a challenge to the business man, the seller to the buyer. As long as commodity prices are working gradually upward, said departments made most spectacular records. The great improvements in selling and advertising methods which have been developed must still be retained. Now, however, that the general drift of prices is downward, the business man must become wiser. In the field of chemistry alone tremendous developments are constantly taking place.

"The important thing to bear in mind is that these scientific developments, inventions, and processes are increasing in geometric ratio; that within the next ten years has shown a marvelous increase in the field of chemistry alone tremendous developments are constantly taking place.

SOFTWOOD DEMAND BIG DESPITE LATE SEASON

Says the American Lumberman in its weekly review of the lumber market: Demand for softwood has been showing a seasonal decline, but is of excellent volume for so late in the year. During the forty-four weeks ending Nov. 6, softwood mills shipped one per cent more than they cut, shipments during the last week of this period amounting to ninety-seven per cent of the cut. Trade prospects look rather good, for the reason that construction contracts awarded during the first ten months of the year were six per cent larger than in the corresponding period of last year, and awards in October were only three per cent less than in October of 1925. City building is therefore well maintained, while farmers have large needs that are yet unfilled.

Most retail distributors are going into the winter with low stocks, and continue to buy for immediate requirements only. This in the middle West found that country sales this fall were below expectations as a result of rains and late harvesting, while those in the South found buying held back by the depression in cotton prices. In both these important consuming regions, spring demand is likely to be unusually brisk, and when retailers have completed their inventories and are able to estimate their needs, they will probably enter the market to stock up for spring trade, as mill prices are very favorable.

Southern pine sales during the week reached ninety-eight per cent of the production. Trade with the North and East was slower, but southern sales gained wide acceptance. The pine mills have sold three per cent more than their production. West Coast fir mills have been operating actively, and sales for the last month have averaged twelve per cent less than the cut. To date this year, however, fir sales have totaled one per cent more than the output, and it is noteworthy that West Coast mill stocks of the basic items were considerably less than they were at the corresponding date last year. Rail trade with the middle West has shown seasonal decline. California is consuming increased quantities of lumber, but the excess of mill output is leading buyers to hold off. Export trade is of good volume but not very profitable. Atlantic coast trade has been handicapped by the shortage of tonnage and high rates caused by the British coal strike, but as this is nearing and a revival in the movement may be expected. Some mills have reduced their output, and further curtailment is probable. Logs are very firm, and lower lumber prices are not expected.

Hardwood orders for the week amounted to five per cent more than the production of both northern and southern species. Furniture makers are good buyers but automobile and building trades demand is slower. Ending of the British strike should help overseas trade.

PURCHASING OPPORTUNITIES

"Getting down to brass tacks—the powerful economic and scientific movements mean that the wide-awake concern is going to demand of its purchasing agent a more constructive attitude. It is going to insist that he make an active, expert search for products. He no longer can be content to sit in an office and review the various offerings that happen to be brought to his attention and make routine inquiries of listed vendors.

"The purchasing agent of the future will be more scientifically trained, he will be informed regarding all the new scientific developments, inventions, and processes that affect his business; he will be more alert to the opportunities for cooperation with other buyers in his line, where large orders will secure an advantage; he will be too broad to worry about the petty jealousies that now are costing business concerns millions of dollars. He will seek the seller rather than sit back on the chance that the right seller will seek him. He will abandon the attitude of a king, in his throne, and allow salesmen are allowed to come with their propositions.

"The successful buyer will take the position of the alert explorer who is ever watchful of opportunities to reduce costs and increase demand. He will spend part of the day with the various technical and research laboratories testing and searching for new savings. He will spend another part with various trade associations comparing notes and cooperating with others where it is advantageous to do so. He will spend still a third part of the day with his charts, noting the fundamental trends of prices and the effects of economic conditions. In short, he will be a real constructive force in the business and not merely an order-clerk or horse trader.

"He will take just as great satisfaction in digging up a mere profitable

HUSBAND AND WIFE GO 50-50 WHEN THEY SELECT FIXTURES

Not Much Domineering by Either as They Visit Plumbing Shop

Husbands and wives generally choose the bath room fixtures for a new or remodeled home together, according to Reinhard Wenzel of the Wenzel Plumbing company, 427 W. College-ave. In some cases the wife chooses all the fixtures and the husband has nothing to say while in others, the circumstances are just reversed. In the majority of instances they choose together.

Home owners are generally getting away from the flat white finish in bathroom decorations, according to Mr. Wenzel, and various shades, of which blue, light brown and pink are most popular, are coming into style. The floor of the bathroom generally is of tile and the lower section of the side walls are also of tile. The tile may be obtained in various colors to fit the color scheme which is to be carried out.

Another new feature for the modern bathroom is silk waterproof material which is used for a shower bath curtain. The same material can be used for making curtains and thus a pleasing color harmony is obtained. The new silk is obtainable in any color desired, thus eliminating the old white curtain.

Another modern development that will soon be adopted as a part of the up to date bath room is the built in bathtub and soap dish. The bath tub is set back in one side of the wall. The new soap dish eliminates the old one which was conceived in the wall and which were always coming loose and looking dilapidated.

The modern bath room, according to Mr. Wenzel, should contain the following fixtures, usually in white enamel: A built-in bath tub, provided with showers, a grip handle for arising from the tub and set in soap dish, a dressing chair, lavatory, mirror, toilet, medicine chest and a small commode. The bath tub curtain and the window curtains may be of some color to harmonize with the color scheme followed in the walls and ceiling of the room. The floor and part of the side walls and the ceiling are painted a color to match the color scheme of the room.

Shower baths are becoming more popular, according to Mr. Wenzel, and the time will soon come when a modern bathroom must contain showers to be up to date. The Wenzel company carries both the Kohler and the Crane line of bath room fixtures.

COAL MINERS PRODUCE OWN DRAMATIC PLAYS

Taylorville, Ill. —(P)—After a day in the coal mines, or the kitchen, the miners and their wives of this district turn to the drama in their pursuit of education and culture.

Tom Tippett, educational director of sub-district 5, said the miners already have produced half a dozen one-act plays, all acted by coal miners and their families.

"We are now working on a new one, 'The Price of Coal,' dramatizing with telling effect the cost of coal in human life. We will travel to other Illinois mining towns with the plays this winter spreading, if possible, the idea 'Labor-Drama'."

"We feel that our pioneering in the field of play has met with success. We have learned that play, directed by a competent person, has a tremendous appeal to these hard working folk. Hazel MacKay of the Brookwood players, is directing our drama."

"It took three months to get two plays ready for production. One of them had to do with the tragedy of poverty in the southern hill country; the other was just good fun into which we introduced a labor slant. The men and women in the cast, who on the very day of the play had done their regular work in the mine or in the kitchen, gave a performance that surprised everybody."

"New recruits came to the classes and we obtained 'Miss MacKay' to produce our new plays."

CHICAGO PREPARES TO HONOR GEN. JACKSON

Chicago —(P)—Andrew Jackson is coming into his own in Chicago. Stirring new verses by Vachel Lindsay about the hero of New Orleans have attracted special attention, for Chicago is to celebrate soon the centennial of one of the outstanding events of President Andrew Jackson's administration—the establishment of Chicago as a city.

A singular development connected with the fresh enthusiasm here for Jackson is notice of the fact that one of the most commanding structures in the city, the new Chicago Federal Reserve Bank building, is located in Jackson boulevard, regardless of the famous successful fight of "Old Hickory" to abolish Alexander Hamilton's celebrated institution, the Bank of the United States. Jackson boulevard is the finest long east-and-west thoroughfare in Chicago.

OIL BOOM TOWNS ARE PAYING HEAVY TAXES

Oklahoma City —(P)—Cities that "might have been" and on which high tax rates were levied after heavy bond issues had been voted, are frequent in Oklahoma history.

Devall and Pershing, both small oil towns in Oklahoma, were given as examples by Randall Cobb, assistant attorney general in charge of the state bond department.

Six years ago, oil was brought to the surface in the vicinity of the little vil-

NAPOLÉON'S CANE OF TRIESTE DAYS IS SOLD

Trieste —(P)—Napoleon's cane has been purchased by a local antiquary for 45,000 lire.

The cane had been cut from a red wattle-berry tree by one of Bonaparte's soldiers after the battle of Arcola. Into the handle the artistic guardsman had skillfully cut the features of his general with several episodes of the recent battle. The finished product he then presented to Napoleon, who carried the cane continually while he remained at Arcola. When he departed he inadvertently left it in the house at which he had stopped, where it had since been carefully guarded.
